THE ROBBERS.

It Is Nothing When You Are Used It.

SAN FRANCISCO IS INURED TO IT.

A Short History of Municipal Steals on the Other Side of the Bay. Some Gossip.

[WRITTEN FOR THE TRIBUNE.]

They have been making a great deal of fuss in San Francisco this week about a few wagon-loads of rubbish dumped into the walls of the New City Hall instead of the more expensive brick and mortar. The newspapers have been wildly excited, and people have been up before the Grand Jury telling all they know about the fraud, with the expectation of having the guilty men indicted.

All this outcry is just solemn nonsense. The city expects to be robbed in its work, and the citizens rather seem to like the process; at least, they nearly all stand in with some kind of steal.

Some years ago there was a scandal about the manner in which the indigent dead of the county were buried, and one of the witnesses, in testifying, constantly spoke of the corpses as the "indignant dead."

"Indigent, you mean," corrected supervisor Foley.

"Let him alone; he is all right," said Mayor Blake. "If the dead are not indignant at the treatment they have received from the undertaker, why all I can say is they lack proper pride."

It appeared that the contractor had been in the habit of taking the bodies to the grave in a fine coffin, dumping the remains into the ground and bringing the "envelope" home again to serve for the next unfortunate.

"You gentlemen don't expect a man to throw in a shroud and a casket with a 75-cent funeral," inquired the undertaker with pain and asperity in his voice. "'Cos all I can say is if yer do yer ain't got no conscience."

That is about the way things are generally done in this much-robbed city, where street contractors think it is good sport to build brick sewers without mortar, and an artesian well contractor found it more profitable to connect with a Spring Valley main than go to the expense of pumping. The people have no right to expect any better service than they get. The very school children are educated to a full appreciation of the power of a political pull and its uses. The principal of a school expelled a boy for conduct that would have disgraced a young Apache. It does not matter what it was, but in a mixed school of boys and girls it was something that could not be tolerated, if any semblance of decency was to be preserved.

"You can't keep me away," said the boy to the teacher, "my father will fix you."

A week later the boy was back in his class, boasting how his father had made a School Director order the teacher to reinstate him.

Boys are quick to learn, like all young animals, and it is not calculated to increase their respect for honesty and industry to see a teacher with a "pull" promoted over the heads of older and worthier educators, as is regularly done in San Francisco.

Petty dishonesties mark the administration of the best conducted branches of the public service. Three rival lines of street railroads terminate at Golden Gate Park. The music stand was the great attraction, yet it was moved 200 yards away to another place to give a favored street railroad the larger share of park travel. There is a law against the sale of liquors in the park, yet for years a favored firm of caterers have been allowed to retail all kinds of intoxicants in the Park Casino, and the worst of it is the place is the scene of the worst class of entertainments.

There is a law against erecting and maintaining stands on the streets. Some time ago the Superintendent of Streets made an elaborate bluff at enforcing this law. Dozens of bootblack stands were carted off to the corporation yard, and scores of weeping Italians gazed at them from over the fence of the corral. But on every main street are to be found large bootblack stands under the special protection of some officer of the municipality, and no notice is taken of demands for their removal.

There is a law against the maintenance of lotteries, yet there is a lottery run in the city under the protection of the authorities, and in which half a dozen politicians are interested. Once in a while an arrest is made and a small fine is imposed, but it does not amount to a moderate license.

The School Department ordered a lot of lumber a short time ago. It was supplied at the market price, but the favored contractor furnished what is known as bull pine instead of the article called for, and made a profit of 100 per cent on the job. Complaint was made, but no action was taken, and the steal went unpunished.

All of these things are well known. No matter which party is in office, a gang of jobbers goes in with it, and profits by a regular system of larceny, and the system will continue so long as the present plan of managing affairs continues.

"What are we here for?" is the cry of each successive Board of Supervisors, and every two years the people see the men who took office with only a suit of clothes to their name, retire with a whole clothing store. There is a divide in everything. The court stenographer, whose place is worth from $400 to $600 per month, is the man who has paid the expenses of the court's election, and is always ready to make an advance. The man who furnishes basalt blocks, the man who sells drugs, and the man who supplies beef, all had to put up the sinews of war for some one during the campaign, and not infrequently made presents of all sorts of valuables, from a nice large lot of land to a silver tea service to a statesman's wife. The electric light company had to place a block of its stock where it would do the most good, and so long as the Democrats are in power no other company will be given a franchise. The last fight against the water company was a collection movement, and everyone knows how to go to work to get a street railroad franchise. The friends of the court who made the judge's fight are the gentlemen who get the nice fat fees as receivers and commissioners, and the gentleman who supplies the departments with pens, ink and paper did not depend on the price and quality of his wares when seeking the contract.

The deputies have to assess themselves to present the boss with diamond pins, watches, horses, etc., and also put up for his campaign expenses and even the ill-paid nurses at the hospital were forced to pay the law expenses incurred in seating one Board of Health and ejecting another. And the Secretary of the Board makes his collections as openly as the gentleman who comes around with a bill for gas.

Oh, yes, we have a nice sense of municipal honesty in San Francisco. A short time ago, a State Senator, who had a job in the corporation yard, looking after street department supplies, went into business on his own account on quite a large scale. For a partner he had a man who owned a schooner, and, as fast as that schooner could make trips up a neighboring creek, she was loaded with basalt blocks. The less dishonest dealers in this article found that they were being undersold, and made an investigation. There was some fuss, but the owner was not punished.

"Put him in charge of a wharf," said the boss. "He cannot very well steal that."

When the seawall building was being done by Onderdonk and before the time of the present commission it was the common practice to dump five loads of sand and tally ten. The work done failed to measure within a third of what was charged for in the way of material, and some meddling engineer objected to having it paid for.

"Where is the rest of the sand and rock?" asked the contractor, a fine flush of indignation mantling his brow. "Why, sunk in the mud, of course."

And that was all there was done about it.

A little time ago a sensation was caused by the discovery that a lot of Chinese had in their possession forged receipts for poll tax. The assessor who collects poll tax was up in arms, the newspapers almost raved, so deep was their indignation, and everyone expected to see a number of heathens sent to jail. But no arrests were made, and later on it leaked out that the receipts had been sold by the regular deputies, who had started a printing press on their own account.

Clubdom was excited during the week by stories of a row at the Bohemian Club between Peter Robertson, the brilliant amateur of "Undertones," and Wilson Barrett, the actor. All sorts of rumors were out. "Robertson had thrown a glass of wine at Barrett and been spanked for his temerity," was the favorite version. It turned out, however, that nothing serious had happened. Peter had spoken of "snide actors" who came to San Francisco, and Barrett had called Peter a poetical advertisement for Cockle's Antibilious Pills.

And it was all in fun.

There is going to be a social war next winter. Milton Hammond aspires to lead the German and his rival is in a serious state of nervousness about the threatened competition.

SAN FRANCISCO.

BORROWING BACK.

Stockton Used the Oakland Bond Ordinance.

Stockton Independent.

City Clerk Campbell is in receipt of the following letter:

Kindly furnish me with copies of all ordinances passed by your City Council relating to the recent election in your city for bonded improvements. We are preparing to bond the city of Oakland for public improvements similar to those embraced in your bonded scheme, and I desire copies of your ordinances for comparison with our own. Yours respectfully,

TALIESIN EVANS,
Councilman at Large.

When the Council decided to submit to the voters the question of bonding the city for improvements they looked about to other cities for guidance in the matter of the proper mode of procedure and the forms for the necessary ordinances ordering the election. Stockton copied from Oakland and Alameda, and improved upon the methods of these cities. Now it appears that Oakland will borrow what was originally borrowed from that city.

GOOD FOR HAYWARDS.

The Benefit to be Derived From a Celebration.

The Haywards Journal, speaking of the forthcoming celebration of the 4th of July in that pleasant town, says: "Haywards will never before be so thoroughly advertised. In fact the interest over the celebration is so widespread throughout the county that the Oakland TRIBUNE proposes to give us a special edition on the afternoon before the 4th, giving a description of Haywards, its charming location, and famous home center, and paying their respects to Eden Parlor and its new building, and a full account of the arrangements for the parade, etc. Bro. Dargie is a newspaper man of grit and public spirit, and his efforts will be greatly appreciated. The people can thank the young men at the head of this celebration for the big boom that the town will get through THE TRIBUNE and other papers for the dedication of the first N. S. G. W. building in this city July 4th, is a step that has caused the greatest enthusiasm in the order, and the town will receive the most flattering notice in this connection.

John Hackett Better.

Councilman John Hackett continues to improve rapidly and sits up every day now at his home. He has recovered from his attacks of nervousness resulting from the recent railroad disaster and his injured hand is healing. He will be out on the street in a few more days

HAMILTON'S TROUT

In Connection With the Poetry of the Citrus Belt.

THE TOWN LOT POETS OF THE SOUTH.

Cable Road Lyrics--A Pasadena Bird--A Santa Monica Epic--Wooden Leg Poetry.

[WRITTEN FOR THE TRIBUNE.]

When Rose Hartwick Thorpe wrote "Curfew Must Not Ring Tonight," she should have stood pat on that. Like Ned Hamilton and the trout, having caught one good fish, she should have refused forever after to go a-fishing, and bragged of her simple success with power to add to its proportions. Like Hamilton's trout, which grows faster than the school census, her poem would have achieved immortality unobscured by a cloud of trumpery tinglings of the sort, which Sam Hall, with tender euphemism, dignifies as "those pan fish." Now, if you want to know the story of the Hamilton trout, you had better ask himself. He will tell it to you freely, and if you ask him three months later he will tell it to you again, and you can observe the remarkable growth of that extraordinary and immortal fish.

The connection between a fish out of water and Rose Hartwick Thorpe may be a little obscure at first sight, but one may quote the profound observation of another poet that "things are not what they seem." Conceding the merit of the "curfew" poem, I am sorry to see that Mrs. Thorpe has allowed herself to be harnessed to the San Diego boom and is now writing poetry of the real estate variety. The other day at the opening of a street car line in that city, she was the poet of the day. I offer some selected verses from the poem which has San Diego for its subject.

Once on a time, tradition tells,
A child was born beside the sea,
And mountains bowed their hoary heads,
And ocean tuned his saltstrelsy.

And earth upheaved, to cradle her
In nature's dimple. She was fair,
Had Spanish eyes, yet stranger to say,
Gold, red gold, was her unbound hair!

A maiden grown. Then lovers came.
And told her beauty, far and wide:
Her slender being's languid grace:
Her red, gold hair; her sun-bright face:
Her future wealth, they prophesied.

. . . . . .

But "hottest love is soonest cold,"
Her beauty held him for an hour,
Then he forgot her locks, red gold:
Forgot her love and her rich dower.

. . . . . .

"I'll wed myself to Enterprise,
My monument of fame shall rise,
Not for my gold, my red-gold hair,
Or my perpetual summer skies,

But for my true, substantial worth,
For ocean lines and lines of steel:
For ripened fruit and fruit in bloom;
For winter days like days in June,
And heart throbs all the world shall feel

There is nothing criminal about these verses, but they are not poetry. The lady has acquired a certain command of the poetic jargon in which one talks of red gold hair, sun-kissed seas, passionate pulses, rock-ribbed hills, or emerald leas, refers to the moon as Diana's orb, or the sun as Apollo's car of fire. Mix in suitable proportions, with an occasional rhyme, and there is your poem. If you can ring in something about elfs and fays, so much the better. I notice that Mrs. Thorpe has forgotten the fairies, who are expected to be present in all well regulated poems of this order. I hope she will not let it occur again.

There was not so much of the poetic jargon, perhaps, in the effort of a gentleman car driver, read on the same auspicious occasion, but there was more earnest purpose, as you shall judge from this sample:

All honor to the men whose enterprise and zeal
Have given us this splendid cable line:
With Collins, Dare and Fisher, and likewise Havermale,
Our city soon all others will outshine.

CHORUS.

Then let the big wheel turn that hauls the cable round,
And we every one will make the trial trip;
And over all the world the chorus shall resound,
For San Diegans never lose their grip.

The exigencies of the rhyme between "zeal" and "Havermale" would seem to betray the poet's nationality.

It must not be supposed that San Diego has a monopoly of boom poetry, for I find some elegant verses celebrating the glories of Pasadena, among which I find these:

O, land of my song and my pride,
I am dreaming forever of thee;
I would touch but the hem of thy robe
As it trails far away to the sea.
O, mountains that shelter my home,
I sit under your eaves in my dreams
And watch, from the canyons below,
The descent of your beautiful streams.

O, beautiful poppies of spring!
I am dreaming of fields where they lie,
Of the foothills' low border of gold,
Where the meadow larks sing as they fly;
Of cream cups far down in the glen,
Where the daisies are baptised in dew;
Of my Jersey, knee-deep in the bloom,
Where the bluebells and heliotrope grew.

I welcome with affection my old friends, the singing lark and the daisies, but I still miss the elves. It is true there never was a singing lark or a real daisy within five thousand miles of Pasadena, but that makes no difference to the poet. The fowls of the air and the flowers of the field grow under her magic touch like Hamilton's expansive trout.

Lest it be supposed that the poetry of the southern citrus belt is all devoted to the advertisement of real estate, I append some verses selected from a historical epic by an inmate of the Santa Monica Home, entitled a "Panegyric on the one hundred and fifty-eighth anniversary of the immortal Washington and his allies, for gaining the independence of America, with observations and remarks about his successes, etc., and other topics up to the present day." These are the verses:

When Sheridan arrived at the scene of the disaster, his artillery opened fire with a thundering noise,
Which aroused and inspired his brave warriors to win back the lost fight,
As they saw his free flag in for victory, and by the martial fire in his eyes.
That the sun would shine on their fame again that day and the moon light up their victory that night.

Providence has again given us a great protective President, and the greatest of all Secretaries of late,
Who has trampled in freedom's dust the pro-British free trade and ruinous policy that Cleveland and Bayard wrote in their slate,
Which will amazingly enrich the public treasury, and all home industry protects and helps,
From perfidious free trade British tories, and their mugwump cognate whelps.

I believe it was Editor Otis of Los Angeles who promised us an "American Homer" as a natural evolution of the citrus belt environment, and I verily believe that this is he. None but an epic genius would recognize the brotherhood of rhyme in "noise" and "eyes," and if he lives and has luck, he will be a bigger man than Hamilton's trout.

Let it not be supposed, however, that the Southern citrus belt has a monopoly of all the poets, or I had a Grass Valley lady, who can do as well as any of the town lot poets. Here are a few of her verses:

Ellis was not hurted dangerous
So they brought him nome that night;
And his dear wife and children in chorus
Thanked God, for he was carefull and bright.

His back was the wers that was injured,
Also some cuts on his face and head,
But none of them will prove serious
And he is recovered and out of bed.

. . . . . .

Oh, ye poor miners, le this a warning be,
As ye in the earth do send
Forget not thy Master
On whom they life do ends.

The subject of this doleful rhyme was Miner Jones, who lost a leg in an accident, and this poetry was written with the benevolent object of paying for a substitute. In fact, it sounds as if it had been written with Jones's wooden leg and had caught the musical stump and plug of that timber shin.

EDWARD F. CAHILL.

TENNIS SINGLES.

The Great Tournament at San Rafael on the Fourth of July.

The Representatives of Alameda County Tennis Clubs in the Prize Courts.

Tennis enthusiasts are anxiously awaiting the result of the contests at the Hotel Rafael on July 4th, as every player of prominence on the coast will take part, and many brilliant matches are expected. The event will be the third annual tournament for the single championship of the Pacific Coast, and the California Lawn Tennis Club, under whose charge the affair is to be held, has spared neither pains nor expense to make it a success.

The prizes to be given are the most valuable ever offered before in California, and compare favorably with those played for at the Newport and other Eastern tournaments.

The courts upon which these games are to be played have been laid out under the supervision of competent tennis men, and every detail has received the closest attention. Arrangements have been made for a large audience, but the spectators can in no way interfere with the players, as the seats nearest the players will be more than twenty-five feet from the outside lines.

For the exclusive use of players a large club-house, containing shower baths and dressing rooms, has been built at one end of the grounds.

The scoring of the entire meeting will be in charge of F. H. Ziel of the Belle View Club, Alameda, and Joseph Daily, courtkeeper of the California Club. The tennis men of Alameda county are taking a lively interest in this tournament, and every club on this side of the bay will be represented.

The Lakeside colors will be carried by C. P. Hubbard, Louis and Henry Haight, Alec Stewart, the Marx brothers, S. S. Sanborn, and Charlie Comstock. The East Oak and Club will send Frank Fisher and C. S. Melvin. Oakland will be represented by Messrs. Waterman, Younger and Harrison.

The interests of the University Club will be looked after by Messrs. Garber, Palache, Allen and Haskins.

With such an array of talent it is more than likely that one of the prizes will come to this side of the bay.

Oakland clubs will also send delegates to the first annual convention of Pacific Coast tennis players, which will meet at the Hotel Rafael on the evening of July 3d. The object of this meeting is to combine the clubs under the name of the Pacific Coast Lawn Tennis Association for the purpose of advancing the game of tennis in the far West.

The Widow Awaits Her Dead.

The embalmed body of Harry W. Auld, the young Hawaiian capitalist, drowned at the Webster street bridge disaster on May 30th, was kept at McAvoy & McCarthy's shop until yesterday, when it was shipped to Honolulu for burial. The deceased was 27 years old, and his young widow lives at Honolulu.

Dragged by a Horse.

P. Flynn, the wood and coal dealer of Center street, while driving with his son James, yesterday turned a corner sharply. Both occupants of the buggy were thrown into the street. Mr. Flynn was dragged and was considerably hurt, but his son was uninjured.

Music in the Park.

A great crowd of people gathered in and about the City Hall Plaza last evening to listen to the open air concert of the Fifth Infantry Regiment band.

LITTLE JOHNNY.

The Anecdotal History of Snakes.

WHY THE DESERTS ARE UNFERTILE.

Mr. Pickering's Objection to Being Born Again—Uncle's Opinion of Stephen M. White.

[WRITTEN FOR THE TRIBUNE.]

Snakes is tails, all but only jest their heads, wich is pison, and Uncle Ned, wich has ben in Injy and every were, he says one time in Africa there was a mitionary preacher, and he went to the King of the natif niggers, the mitionary preacher did, and said to him, "You ot to pas a law agin snakes, cos they are pison, and your subjecks is dyin' like the leafs of the forest."

The king he looked at the mitionary preacher out of his eye, and then he spoke up and saiu, "Thats all rot about snakes bein pison. I have et snakes of my life and wasent never sick a day."

The snake he hasent got any feets, but he walks on his belly and swollers his dinner with out chewing, cos that would pison it and he wud di in a minit, and one day to dinner my father he said to Billy, thats my brother, "Billy, if you dont chew your food you will be took sick in yure dispepsy."

Billy he spoke up and said, "Snakes dont."

Then father he was furious mad, and he said, "William, if you want to be snakes you get right up from this table and go out and crol on the stummuck of your belly and load it up with hop toads, but lie teech you that you cant eat mish potattoes in this house less you chew it like a Cristian!"

Snakes is many kinds, but the she ones is a serpent. The pisonest snake wich is in the world is the rattle, but the kioty he takes him in his teeths and shakes him crowel and spatters his pison all around, and thats wy you cant make the desert for to bloom as the rose. The nigger wich plays the bones at the minstrels he can beat the rattle and has got more mowth, but he aint so bity. The boy constrickter is the bigest snake wich roams the plain. It isent pizon, but only jest squeezy, and wen it gits done squeezin its pray the pray is litle and long like its own self, for to fit its inside real comftible. Once there was a ship had a snake show on board wich was bein took to a other country, and one of the show men he was a cellibrated snake charmer. One morning the chaplin of the ship he went down were the snakes was kep for to see how things was, and wen he had looked a round he called a sailer up, the chaplin did, and said to the sailer, "My good feller, if the captin sees that lawzer a lyin around ol over this deck he will be mighty mad and take the name of the Lord in vain. You better have it put out of the way."

The sailer he fetched his hat and said, the sailer did, "I, i, sir, just as you say, only taint a lawzer, cos if you pleas that hoop contrackter it got out of its cage a bit ago, and that is the charmer."

Then the chaplin he thot a wile, and then he said, "Wel, wel, pore feller, jest prepare him for berrial in the bocsum of the deep, and be perticklar that them wunderfle eyes wich culd subdew the serpents of the jungle is nice closed and has 2 pennys on them."

The sailer he spoke up a other time and said, "Yessir, He coil him up real decent, but them eyes cant be found nowhere. I gess the squeez unshipt them and they was popped out the port hole."

Billy says wen you kil a snake it wil live til the sun sets, but wen the snake it kils you the dockter he comes and that makes it differant. The scorpin he bites with his tail, like he was a wops, but the hoop snake he takes hisen in his teeths and roles from place to place, cos he is a reptile, but the cracky dile is a mollux. And that is all wich is known a bout snakes, for the world it was created in 6ix days, each after its own kind, and the sevventh is for refreshment.

The horse is usefuler than snakes, cos it can put and be rode, and boots is made out of its hide, wich is lather, and wen there is a circus the horse is good for to turn a summer solt over, and for to be rode 4 to once by the Silf of the Arena. My sisters yung man he says one time he met a cirkus lady and she tole him that it was her trade for to ride five horses at a galp, a standin up on the 2 out side ones. My sisters yung man he ast her cude she ride the horses that way without puttin on, cos he ment no saddles on the horses. The cirkus lady she said, "Yes, I spose I cude, but I pfer to have some skerts and a pair of short lether britches, coper rivted, jest for appearences."

Then my sisters yung man he said he he thot that was the best way his own self, but if I was a show Ide rather be the Injy rubber man and set on the top of my own hed, and ti my legs under my chin, like I was a hunnet, yes, indeed, and turn my self in side out, cos the Bible says if we aint born agin we got to be burnt up. And now I wil tel you a story.

One time ole Mister Pickering, wich is the editor feller of the Call, he was to a revivle of religion, and one of the good men come to him and take hole of his hand, and said, the good man did, "My feller travler to the judgment day, wont you cum up to the ankus seat and be born agin?"

Mr. Pickering he thot a wile, and then he said, "That depens on whoo I am to be, cos I mite be Decon Fitch."

Then the good man was a stonish, but he thot mebby he hadent under stood, so he said, "Wy, you wude be just yure own self, of corse."

Mister Pickring shuke his hed a wile, and then he sed, "Ime a prety ole man now, tho not so gum dasted prety neether, wen you luke at me rite, and Ime about thru. If I cude begin agin as any body else exceptin Decon Fitch, wich is my partner, I wudent mind, but if Ive got to be me ol over agin you wil have to excuse me, cos if I kno any thing a bout the drift and trend of publick ohpinion I wuld stand a olmity good show for to be fard and fethered in my cradle."

Horsee is a quadderpede, but boys and girls has got only 2 apiece, and Mister Jonmee he has got a wooden one, cos man was created sprite but he has sot out menny convenshons, and Uncle Ned he says that is wot ails the honorable Stephen Wite.

A BOGUS DETECTIVE.

Playing a Bluff Game on the Railroad Trains.

The Southern Pacific Company and some of the officers of the Oakland Police Department are looking for an officious individual who is masquerading as a railroad detective on the trains, and who will find himself in serious trouble if he is located. For several months past the train men and other employees along the railroad have complained of a man who has imposed upon them under the disguise of being a detective, and it is said a Texas cowboy could not more completely take possession of a railroad train than does this unknown "Detective." The last time he was heard of was two or three days ago, when he bobbed up on the Niles passenger train, and ran his bluff on one of the railroad employes engaged, under Superintendent Slater, on the block signal system. The young man in question had been replenishing the electric batteries along the road that work the signals and had completed his labors somewhere in the neighborhood of the foot of Harrison street when the Niles train came along and stopped. He placed his tools and a number of battery coppers on the rear platform of the train, for the purpose of taking them to the pier, and was soon joined on the platform by two men, one of whom demanded, in surly tones, to know what he was doing. The employe explained that he was taking his tools to the pier, and that he had been replenishing the signal batteries.

"Are you an employee of the railroad?" demanded the interrogator.

"Yes sir," answered the boy.

"Show your badge then," said the officious stranger.

"We have no badges," answered the boy greatly frightened.

"I believe you are lying young man" said the mysterious individual "drop those tools and coppers."

The boy did as he was told and the man threw them off the train on the marsh. Then he lectured the boy and passed him a card bearing the name "Mr. James Slawson, Los Angeles," and explained that he was a railroad detective and had a mind to throw the boy into jail.

When the train reached the pier the lad walked back and gathered up what of his tools he could find, and reported the matter to Superintendent Slater, who at once laid the matter before the railroad authorities. Police Officer Aldrich has a description of the man, and an attempt is being made both here and in Los Angeles to find him. The man is said to be dressed very stylishly and has dark hair and a light mustache. He is about 35 years of age, and is supposed to be the same man who has played a similar game at other points on the road.

A PERFECT GAME.

That's What the Colonels Played at Stockton Yesterday.

The Colonels went to Stockton yesterday to play a game with the team in that city. The Oakland boys played a perfect game, not an error being scored against them. Carsey and Lohman did splendid battery work. The score was 5 to 2 in favor of the Colonels. The same clubs play again at Stockton this afternoon.

The Senators and the San Franciscos played a championship game at the Oakland grounds yesterday. The attendance was not as large as usual. It was a game of hard hitting, in which the Sacramentos came out on top, winning the contest by a score of 14 to 9. The same teams will play across the bay this afternoon.

The Poet's Family.

Joaquin Miller's wife and daughter, Juanita, arrived from New York City a few days ago to join Mr. Miller. Mrs. Miller was also accompanied by her sister, Miss Hattie Leland. Juanita is the child to whom was addressed that beautiful little poem that was read at Joaquin Miller's recent lecture on "Poetry." She is, in the opinion of Mrs. Frank Leslie, one of the brightest children in America.

Tanning a Hyde.

New York World.

Robert Louis Stevenson, in his Samoan retreat, is devoting time and energy to the defense of the memory of Father Damien, whose reputation has been attacked by a Presbyterian missionary named Hyde. He will make Mr. Hyde wish he were Dr. Jekyll before he gets through with him.

The Trouble Was In Tense.

Exchange.

"I think," said a disappointed and discouraged actor, "that I would have made the hit of my life by not being born." His not "having been" born would have been a bigger hit still—grammatically speaking.

How are the Mighty Fallen!

New York Sun.

One Boulanger appears to be writing letters to the French press. Who is this Boulanger? Nom de plume, perhaps? Or nom de guerre?

No Football Today.

The football game between teams of the Young Men's Christian Association announced for today is postponed, because of some difficulty about the ground.

A Lodge of Elks.

The charter members of the branch of the Order of Elks to be instituted in this city, will meet at Armory Hall at 2 P. M. tomorrow, for the purpose of organization and installation of officers.

STEPHEN M. WHITE

A Forecast of the Democratic Convention.

WILL THE STATESMEN ENDORSE?

Probable Scenes in the Convention. The Statesmen Will Not Like to Give Up Power.

"The Undertaker" in the Stockton Mail writes:

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—Stephen M. White's plan of campaign for the United States Senate is going to provoke bitter opposition.

The proposition, as it is understood, is that the Democratic State Convention is to be asked to pass a resolution something like this:

WHEREAS, The Legislature of 1891 will be called upon to elect a United States Senator for California, and

WHEREAS, The Democratic party in convention assembled regard Stephen M. White as the most available man for the place, now therefore be it

Resolved, That this convention pledge the legislative candidates nominated by the Democratic conventions to vote for Stephen M. White in the event of their election to the Legislature.

Let us imagine that the Democratic Convention is now in session at San Jose and John W. Gaffey, of Los Angeles, has just introduced that resolution and, as a reporter of the Mail, I am writing a report of the proceedings, as I probably will be when the resolution is introduced. I am sure it would read something like this:

REPORT OF THE SAN JOSE CONVENTION.

As soon as the Secretary had finished reading the resolution, Chairman John Boggs of Colusa, who had been elected to satisfy the men from the north, recognized James Galvin of Santa Clara, who moved to lay it under the table.

This was the signal for a dozen motions and amendments and there was some confusion, until Bowers of Marin, rose to a point of order, moving that the convention did not have the power under its call to take any action in the election of United States Senator, and further that it had no authority to instruct the district conventions.

Chairman Boggs ruled against the point of order and an appeal was taken, on which the chair was sustained by a small majority.

On the resolution coming up for passage, the sharpest debate of the week ensued.

Workman of Los Angeles made a very vigorous speech. He said: "Mr. Chairman, and gentlemen of the convention, I believe that it is necessary for the success of the Democratic party that this resolution should pass. The people are disgusted with the manner in which United States Senators have been elected in California for the past twenty years and are ready for a change. They have wearied of Senatorial lobbies at Sacramento, of the talk of 'sacks,' of the open scandals, of the gangs of heelers and corruptionists who have managed Senatorial fights, of the open charges that bosses have such places for sale to rich men, and are ripe for a reform."

McCarthy of San Francisco (interrupting)—Will the delegate from Los Angeles please explain how he can make such a pledge binding on the district delegates?

Workman (continuing)—This convention has the power to pledge all its delegates and nominees.

McCarthy (sarcastically)—Has it? Well, I'm a candidate for the Assembly before the Thirtieth District Convention, and I think I'll be nominated and elected. I want this convention to understand that if I am, I'll vote for the man for United States Senator that my constituents want, and not a man that the gentleman from Los Angeles picked out.

Workman—In that case, sir, I think it is within the resources of political power to force you to accept this pledge, or have the State Central Committee take you off the ticket.

McCarthy—Well, if my district nominates me, and the State Central Committee takes my name off the ticket, they'll have an easy time counting the votes for the candidate they put on; that's all I have got to say.

Workman—These interruptions are not helping us, and I do not wish to answer any more questions. I am convinced that the State Convention has the power to instruct even the Thirtieth District Convention and its nominees. It is an absurd idea, that a Legislative candidate-elect has a vested right to exercise his personal choice.

A Voice—It is the law, absurd as it may seem.

Workman (continuing)—It is not the law. The party can make its own rules in this case, as freely as it can pledge the members of the Legislature to reduce taxes or favor the expulsion of the Chinese. In naming Mr. White, I have named a leader of the party, a tried and trusted man, an able statesman, a man of force and energy, in short, a good Democrat.

Moffitt of Alameda, got the floor. He said:

"Mr. Chairman and gentlemen: I oppose the resolution because it is mere idle vapor and can carry no weight. As a member of the Legislature I would refuse to abide by the order of this convention if it did not please me to obey, and would defy any one to say that I had done wrong. Assuming for a moment that this convention has the power to impose a pledge on the nominee of the district Convention, no one will claim that it has the power to dictate such terms to the Democratic hold-overs of the Senate. I happen to know some of those gentlemen who have made up their minds for whom to vote in case we succeed in electing a majority of the Legislature, and it does not happen that Mr. White is their choice. We have not got many hold-overs, it is true—thanks to the vote of the Democrats in the last Legislature, who seated Republicans Banks and Sprague, no doubt with

COUNTY CLIPPINGS.

Wages of Fruit Pickers in Eden Township.

A NEW DISEASE ATTACKS HORSES.

Burglars at Haywards- Some Speedy Fruit Pickers—General Notes of Interest.

The Persecuted Enumerator.
Haywards Journal

Census enumerator Crane is working hard in this district. So far he has not been thrown over any fences or shot at, but he had a little interview with a dog last week, that came near causing a serious rupture in his pantaloons. But he is going to take the census just the same, and if disabled can sue Uncle Sam for damages.

Fast Fruit Picking.
Haywards Journal.

Some time ago we published an account of the manner they pick and pack fruit in Vacaville, and the best time made by the speedy packers was 52 boxes. This record has been broken by Miss Katie Carey and Miss Lillie Walpert, who packed 60 boxes each one day last week. The price paid was 5 cents a box. The average amount packed, however, is between thirty and forty boxes. The price paid for picking fruit is $1 25 per day.

A Strange Disease.
Haywards Journal.

Lately, a peculiar disease has attacked a number of horses in this vicinity, and, in nearly every case, has proven fatal. It takes the animals all of a sudden, and, in a short time, the hind part of the body is paralyzed. Leo Palmtag lost three valuable horses this week, the gray and two bays, being worth fully $600. We hear of one or two cases in Mount Eden, and a Portuguese, living in the hills, near town, is reported to have lost three horses by this disease. But Ted Thorndyke is about as badly broken up as any one over the death of his famous little black horse, that he had owned for years.

Fruit Pickers' Wages.
Haywards Journal.

T. B. Russell, manager of our Fruit Growers' Association, has been deluged with applications from boys, girls, and women in San Francisco and other places, asking for work in the orchards around Haywards, and a dozen or so came here to find work, on account of an item sent to the Chronicle from here, stating that fruit pickers were receiving $2 and $3 a day. While it may be true that a few have made as high as $3 packing fruit, the average amount is much below that figure, while the pickers receive from $1 to $1 50 per day. There is hardly enough work for our own people this year, and Mr. Russell was afraid at one time that there would be five or six hundred people over here looking for the bonanza in fruit picking. Those who did arrive here were greatly disappointed, and had hardly enough money to return home.

Burglars at Haywards.
Haywards Journal.

Of late we have noticed a number of hard-looking tramps hanging around town, and though there was plenty of work to be had, they were not built that way. On Monday morning between the hours of one and three, the saloons of Hans Sorensen and Petersen & Petersen were entered and a few dollars taken from the tills. The entrance was effected, at the Central Hotel, by cutting through the window and reaching the catch on the inside. The thief then pryed open the money drawer and secured three or four dollars and a silver watch. None of the stock of liquors or cigars were molested. At Sorensen's saloon the thief only secured about forty cents and some German money. A very suspicious looking fellow was noticed acting strangely after the robbery, and some think he was the chap. Constable Ramage captured four tramps Wednesday and took them to Oakland.

Haywards.
Journal.

M. J. Crooks and family depart Monday for two weeks' camping in Niles canyon.

J. J. Sandholt was kicked in the forehead by a horse one day this week, and was badly injured. He will, however, come out all right.

There was a game of baseball on the plaza Sunday between teams composed of members of Y. M. I., No. 6, of Oakland, and Haywards Institute, No. 115. George Sandley pitched for the home team and struck out eleven men in seven innings. Haywards won by a score of 14 to 11.

San Lorenzo.
Haywards Journal.

Rev. Mr. Gurnett will preach at Union Church for several months.

Ed Campbell, now at the railroad shops at West Oakland, has been taking his vacation the last week.

The family of Captain Roberts, together with friends in Oakland and elsewhere, left last week for a few weeks' camping up north.

Charles Stabenow, the handsome master of the brush, and his able assistant are now engaged in painting the public school house inside and out. It will be the prettiest in the country when finished.

Mrs. Krehnke and daughter, Miss May, took their rooms at the Willows Hotel Tuesday, where they will spend the summer. The Willows boasts of some beautiful singers this year.

Monday of last week George Bowers was robbed of two suits of clothes, including his best two suits of underclothes, his purse containing $4, and another article just purchased for $6. Some of the contents of the clothes were found next day in the creek near the railroad bridge, and it was probably the gang of sneak thieves and tramps that have been camping there. George's loss was over $40.

A young man employed by Henry Marlin had an accident that nearly resulted fatally last Saturday. He was driving a spirited span of mules attached to a gravel wagon. They became frightened at a bicycle when near the San Lorenzo House and became unmanageable, throwing the driver beneath the wagon, one of the wheels passing over his head, inflicting an ugly wound, besides having his collar bone broken. He is able to be around now, and will, in a couple of weeks, be able to renew his duties.

THE UNIVERSITY.

But One of the Seniors Failed in the Finals.

Miss Elsie Lee, '89, has joined Kappa Alpha Theta.

Another experimental artesian well is being sunk in the University grounds near the west entrance.

The last senior examination was held today. The lower classmen will not finish till next Thursday.

Pringle, '91, shot himself with a pistol through the hand a few days ago at his home in Marin county.

It is reported that there is but one failure in the senior Class among those who expected to graduate.

J. B. Huskin, '93, played with the Berkeley Club last evening at the last game given by the Lorin Music Hall Library Club at Washington hall.

The last meeting of the faculty will take place Monday, June 23d, to make recommendations for degrees to the Regents, who will hold a meeting Tuesday evening, June 24th.

Reports of the examinations are much more prompt in arriving at the Recorder's office than heretofore, owing to a late order of the faculty, that reports should be in not later than forty-eight hours after an examination if possible.

As was expected the Blue and Gold did not appear yesterday as promised. The managers state it will be ready for distribution Monday. One of the principal features of the book is said to be the account of Professor Gayley's visit to the opera during the Patti season.

A week from today will be class day. The exercises in the morning, or the intellectual part of the programme, will be held in the gymnasium and those of the afternoon, or the "social festival," will take place under the oaks of Deed Canyon. The morning speakers are Miss Ada Ramsdell, J. H. Cary and L. R. Hewitt. For the afternoon, Dr. L. Wilson is historian, Miss F. McNeil, prophetess; E. C. Hill, orator.

Mr. Magee has received plans and specifications from an Eastern firm with estimates for the material for the new running track in the gymnasium. It will be 212 feet long, making 22 laps to the mile, and will be composed of hair felt covered with elastic paint. The manufacturers propose to construct the track so that the cross section shall be a curve, starting near the railing flush with the floor and reaching a height next the wall, of 9 on the straight parts and 12 inches on the corners. The following is from the manufacturers' letter: "The advantages of the curved section are that when a person is running slowly or walking, he is on a level (near the rail). As his speed increases (on account of the centrifugal force developed in turning the corners, he must bend his way), he can run on that part of the track that suits his speed, thus keeping his ankles straight and less liable to be sprained. Thus it will be seen, the straight section is adapted to only one speed, while the curved section is adapted to varying speeds. This has been proved by practice on these tracks. Runners say the curved section makes the easiest, safest and fastest track yet made." The track will be completed by the beginning of next term.

In the Wrong Room.

W. D. Sayre, an Englishman, invaded a Washington street lodging house last night while in an intoxicated condition, and mistook a fellow lodger's room for his own. The lodger whom he had disturbed was very wroth and ordered him out. Sayre refused to go and in a scuffle which ensued he received a scratch on the hand and was later arrested by Officer Alexander and charged with disturbing the peace. His case was called in the Police Court this morning, but was postponed until Monday morning next.

Needs Explanation.

J. T. Harris and Gee Sam, who were arrested by Officers Petley and Howlett last Wednesday evening for smoking opium, were discharged today because no complaint had been filed against them in the Police Court. The men were captured in the act of smoking the drug, and a complete layout was secured as evidence. Why the arresting officers did not file a complaint against the prisoners with such convincing proof is not known at the police office.

Two Pleas.

George Watson, accused of two charges of petty larceny, was called to plead in the Police Court this morning. To the charge of stealing a pair of shoes from Friedman's store, the prisoner pleaded guilty, and to the charge of stealing a bolt of cloth from Lipsa the tailor, he pleaded not guilty. He will appear on Monday for sentence in the former case and for trial in the latter.

Strong Language.

J. B. Loughran, ex-mayor of North Des Moines, Iowa, said recently: "I have just recovered from a severe attack of la grippe. I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm to my breast. These remedies were just the thing in my case. My child had croup some years ago and we used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with perfect success, since then we have never been without these medicines in our house. I had a cousin who was a printer and was employed in a job office in this city, where they were printing circulars for Chamberlain. He had a deep-seated cold and terrible cough, and while setting up the copy he made up his mind to buy a bottle. It cured his cough and that was the first time I ever knew anything of Chamberlain's remedies. I have been strongly in their favor ever since. My own experience and that of my family convinces me that these remedies are the best in the world. That may be strong language, but it is what I think." For sale by Kirkland & Trowbridge.

ILLEGALLY ANNEXED.

That Is What the Courts may Decide in the Adams Suit.

Vernon Heights has been illegally annexed! The city of Oakland is not entitled to the territory recently taken within her bounds and the city tax collectors will have to refund the thousands of dollars collected from the people in that territory. If this is the decision to be rendered by the courts in the suit of Edson Adams against the city, the city of Oakland will be retarded in its growth and the councilman who was to be at large in that district will never roam through the corridors of Oakland's municipal building. There will then be only one way to get that territory annexed to Oakland, and that is, to have it brought in by the Peoples Express and Transfer Company which checks baggage to all parts of the United States from your residence, besides doing a general express business. This Offer is worth careful consideration by all who desire a good Dictionary of the English language—and who does not?

This is the Best. No other reprint edition of Webster's Dictionary is so complete as is this one. Not only does it contain all the words that Noah Webster ever defined, but 10,000 additional new words have been added to it.

The Appendix of this edition contains much valuable matter that is not in the other cheap editions, as follows: The pronunciation of the principal European Languages, Quotations, Phrases, etc., from Latin, French, Italian and Spanish, Abbreviations, seven pages of Mercantile and Legal Terms, etc.

It Also Contains a table of 15,000 Synonyms, eleven pages of a Pronouncing Vocabulary of Scripture Proper Names, twenty-one pages of a Pronouncing Vocabulary of Greek and Latin Proper Names, forty-seven pages of a Pronouncing Vocabulary of Modern Geographical Names, and 1500 Pictorial Illustrations.

This Book is Leather Bound. It is not thrown together, but is well and substantially bound in half morocco—good leather, not shoddy—with full back. It is well and durably stitched, and, with the ordinary use of a dictionary, WILL LAST A LIFETIME.

Call and See It. It will Bear Inspection

It is Worth Three Times What it Costs, and agents are selling it from house to house at $5 to $7 (without the paper) every day. It is not the latest edition of Webster's Unabridged, nor do we claim that it is as good, for it has not the colored plates, patent index and modern technical terms that make the last edition of the Unabridged, which costs from $10 to $12, a triumph of the bookmaker's art; but for all ordinary purposes of the reader, student and business man it fills all requirements.

BY A SURVIVOR.

An Experience on the Narrow Gauge.

ON THE TRAIN THAT WENT DOWN.

In the Fatal Car—The Water Rushing In—Saved His Cane—Rescued by [illegible] Boats.

One of those who were on board the ill-fated train that went through the Webster-street draw gives in the Argonaut a graphic account of his experiences as follows:

On the afternoon of Friday, May 30th, having an appointment to meet some friends in Oakland, I went to the ferry, and, taking the quarter past one boat soon arrived at the wharf on the other side. I then walked a short distance to the awaiting train, but finding that the smoking-car was the last one, and there being but two passenger cars—the first one crowded—I was compelled to enter the one next to the locomotive. The first seats were occupied, so I took one well forward on the left side, about five seats from the end, and seated myself near the closed window. There appeared to be an unusual number of passengers, so I expected someone would wish to share the seat with me; no one came, however, and the train started.

There is a narrow bridge of some two miles in length to be crossed, then a strip of land, then about three hundred and fifty feet of open trestle-work, then a drawbridge over the deep estuary of San Antonio creek, and then a short distance to Oakland. When we were approaching the termination of the trestle-work, and nearing the draw, my attention was attracted by a curious sensation, which afterward I learned was caused by the reversed wheels of the locomotive, which was within thirty feet of me, the tender being in front. Then there came a tremendous crash and a violent swaying of the car forward and downward, then backward, inclining slightly to the right side. The water commenced rushing in great volumes through the various openings into the car, rapidly increasing in depth. Of course there was a terrible commotion: but thinking that the train had merely broken through the trestle-work, I remained in my seat waiting for the car to settle to the bottom, when suddenly a man dashed across me from the right side, and shattering the glass of the closed window with both fists, forced himself through the hole and disappeared.

By this time the water had risen to my waist, and looking out of the window and realizing at length that we had plunged through the draw and were in the deep water of the channel, I arranged my hat firmly on my head, and taking with me my cane, which did such good service afterward, forth I went through the opening, and heedless of the sharp edges of the broken glass, soon stood outside on the window-sill, and then with some difficulty, climbed to the roof of the car and stood upright—I was saved!

I was bleeding profusely from several cuts, but for these I cared but little at the time. Hearing a cry of "Help!" I glanced over the side and saw a hatless man struggling through the window; at some hazard I reached him an assisting hand and soon he was in temporary safety by my side; the car was still sinking slowly, but there was no sound from the interior—All was silent!

Then came swiftly toward us the first boat, but just then seeing a poor drowning man being swept outward by the ebbing tide, I directed their attention to him, they soon reached him, and seizing him by the coat-collar dragged him into the boat.

Then came another and larger boat. We were urged to get into it at once, and taken a few feet to the bridge, upon which we climbed by means of some wet and slippery projections.

There was still the trestle-work of uneven spaces to cross over, with the water glistening some twenty feet below. Now came the good service of the cane. My boots were full of water, my hands bleeding, but I crossed cautiously from one beam to another, and finally reaching the termination, heard, with an internal echo, a woman's voice: "Thank God, we are on land again!"

At this moment, a kind-hearted lady came forward, who insisted on my entering her cottage. She washed and bound up my most troublesome wounds, but I was wet to the skin, from my shoulders downward, and feared a chill, when, very opportunely, a freight locomotive came up, and I was allowed by the good engineer to warm myself at his engine fire.

The engineer proposed to me to remain with him, he was bound to the roundhouse for tools, and would continue a little further, to the "junction," and flag the approaching train from Alameda with passengers for San Francisco.

The train was signalled, and on the arrival at the end of the wharf I was quickly passed through the gates and then into the furnace room, not forgetting to take a good strong glass of whisky at the bar.

My new friends greeted me kindly, and listened with great interest to the story of my dreadful tragedy and my wonderful escape. We soon arrived at the wharf, and after drinking to my health and long life, I received their parting benediction and went on deck again; the passengers had all gone ashore, so I walked quietly up the wharf-way alone.

I was the first of the survivors to arrive, but the news had been telephoned and the city was full of excitement. I engaged a carriage, and with a surgeon, who had been ordered to attend to the sufferers, was soon on the way to my rooms. My wounds were dressed, stitched and bound up, a complete change of clothing put on, and I proceeded as quickly as possible to send to my anxious friends in Oakland the tidings of my safety. H. F. C.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9, 1890.

Miss Lathrop Will Lecture.

Miss Mary F. Lathrop, the Non-Partisan Woman's Christian Temperance Union Organizer, will lecture at the Gospel Temperance Mission, 865 Broadway, Thursday evening, June 19th.

ALAMEDA.

Fire Department Delegates Taking Judge Greene's Advice.

The sanctuary boys of St. Joseph's Church picnicked yesterday on Brower's ranch, near Laundry Farm.

Twenty-one children, all first cousins, are stopping at the residence of Columbus Bartlett, on St. Charles street.

The matter of opening Jefferson street will be considered by the Board of City Trustees next Monday evening.

H. T. Morris will leave in a few days for the southern part of the State. His duties as constable will be performed by Louis Schoenau.

The Alameda City Brass Band the latest musical acquisition of Alameda, will show the public for the first time what it can do in the way of producing harmonious sounds by giving an open-air concert in Alameda Park the latter part of this month.

The fact is worthy of record that Marcus H. Wiggin, who will enter the State University next term, is the first son of a graduate to enter that institution. His father, Judge M. P. Wiggin, at present an editorial writer on the San Francisco Chronicle, was graduated in the class of '67.

Captain R. R. Thompson has declined an offer of $300 per front foot for a lot 40x80 feet on Park street, corner of Central avenue. The offer was made by the Bank of Alameda, which offered to pay him the actual cost of the bank building standing on the lot, making the total offer $22,000.

Charles O'Brien, who was the fireman of the train which plunged into the estuary through the open draw, has gone to Oregon, and will seek employment on a railroad in that State. His sister, who while a teacher in the public schools of Alameda secretly married a young man by contract, lives at Portland, Or.

At the meeting of Central Hose Company, last evening, George Lovegrove, who had, previously, been dropped from the company, was permitted to resign. The rules were then suspended, and he was re-elected a member; he was, also, re-elected one of the representatives of the company to the Board of Fire Delegates. This was in accordance with Judge Greene's advice, and is a partial settlement of the difficulties which have been besetting Central Hose Company.

BERKELEY.

The Liquor Sellers and the "Spotter."

Mrs. H. A. Goss has gone to Oregon, to visit for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Boyd have gone to Colfax, to spend a week's vacation.

Vesper services will be held this afternoon, at 5:30 o'clock, in the Congregational Church.

Lieutenant Hutton will take leave of his many Berkeley friends next week, as he must be back to his post in Nebraska on July 2d.

Uncalled for letters addressed to the following are at the postoffice: Miss A. Coughlin, Miss A. E. Coughlin, (care of Miss M. Coughlin), Mr. Cahil, Mrs. A. Cole, Wm. Dreyer, Mrs. C. W. Hiermann, H. N. Harding, Mrs. Kate Kemp, Mrs. Gussie Nolt, Miss Maud Noble, Miss Agnes Thompson, Miss Bertha Vervalne, Miss E. White.

J. L. Armstrong, the prosecuting witness in the case against John Achison's clerk, for selling liquor within one mile of the University, has been arrested for stealing and for giving away liquor within one mile of the University. John Achison is the prosecuting witness in each case. He charges that the "spotter" Armstrong went into a back room in the Achison Hotel and stole some whiskey, and, furthermore, that after so doing, he gave some of the whiskey away in the presence of several witnesses, which was also contrary to law. Mr. Achison says that he will give this young man Armstrong all he wants before he is through with him. The warrant for stealing was sworn out before Judge Welcker, and the one for giving away liquor, before Judge Lloyd, in West Berkeley.

West Berkeley.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Williams are visiting in San Francisco.

Mrs. Edward Brennan of Merced county is visiting Mrs. and M. Higgins of this town.

Mr. Rourke has been awarded the contract for getting up the new Justices' court room in the engine house. Judge Lloyd states that he would not have asked that the work be done, but that the same had been done in East Berkeley, and West Berkeley needed the improvement as much as did the east end of the town.

Tahoe Lodge, Knights of Honor, have elected the following officers: Thomas Jones, D.; H. Squires, V. D.; G. C. Boeddicker, A. D.; S. A. Penwell, Reporter; W. Dickieson, F. Reporter; A. Swenson, Treasurer; J. Wilson, Chaplain; J. Mulligan, Guide; Paul O'Connell, Guard; W. H. Kuhlman, Sentinel; C. R. Brown, Samuel Wright and B. E. Everson, Trustees.

Visited the Northwest.

Police Clerk W. A. Moore returned to duty this morning, after an absence of several weeks, which he spent in visiting the prominent northern cities, spending a portion of his time at Portland, Tacoma, Seattle and Spokane Falls. At Spokane he met Harold Bolce, formerly a newspaper reporter in this city, who has a first-class position on one of the most prominent dailies of the northwest, and is doing some brilliant work. Mr. Moore visited the different police offices in the cities where he stopped and learned their modes of conducting business. Several of them, he says, have patrol systems and wagons, but none of them can compare with the Oakland system, which he says is the best of the lot.

Oakland Health Report.

In the report of the State Board of Health for the month of May no mention is made of Oakland because the report arrived at Sacramento too late to be included in the State circular. The cause of the delay in sending the report was owing to the confusion consequent to a changing of secretaries of the Oakland Board.

Melting the Pavement.

Martin Bitterly, a 14 year old youth with a penchant for getting into trouble, was arrested by the police yesterday for building a bonfire on the bituminous rock pavement on Franklin street, and was accused of violating a city ordinance. In the Police Court this morning, his case was continued until Monday to plead.

He Sat on the Steps.

John Collins, accused of disturbing the peace, had his case postponed until Monday, in the Police Court, this morning. Collins is a young man, 20 years of age, and was sitting, with a companion, on the doorstep of a Mrs. Payne, on Seventh street, between Franklin and Webster streets, late last evening. The lady did not appreciate certain remarks made by him, and caused his arrest, for refusing to leave, when ordered.

They Stole Cherries.

Thomas Ryan and John Sanders were brought to the County Jail this morning, accused of stealing cherries.

COUNTY SCHOOLS.

Many Positions of Teachers to Be Filled.

EXAMINATIONS FOR CERTIFICATES.

End of the Term at the Livermore School—The Flag Raised at Irvington.

The semi-annual examination for teachers' county certificates will commence at the Lincoln school building, corner of Eleventh and Alice streets, next Tuesday morning, commencing at 9 o'clock. The rules governing the examination require that all persons intending to enter the examination must register, either personally or by letter, at the office of the Secretary at the Courthouse at least two days preceding the examination; that no applicant under the age of 18 years can enter; that each applicant must pay a fee of $2; that applicants not present at the beginning of the examination will not be subsequently admitted; that applicants found cheating or aiding will be dismissed. No grammar grade or grammar school course certificate will be granted an applicant who has not taught at least one year, but an applicant may take the entire examination, and having secured the required standing may receive a grammar grade or a grammar school course certificate after a year's successful experience without further examination. Applicants who fail to receive 70 per cent in each of the first three studies (arithmetic, grammar and spelling) shall receive only a primary grade certificates and applicants failing to receive 60 per cent in each of the first three studies must be dismissed from the examination. In order to secure a grammar or grammar school course certificate 85 per cent or 935 and 1105 credits are required respectively; for a primary grade 80 per cent or 680 credits. Credits for experience not to exceed 5 for each year will be granted to applicants who present satisfactory evidence of the same, such evidence being the recommendation of school officers.

The graduating exercises of the Livermore school were held yesterday afternoon and were attended by a large audience. The graduates were: Nina J. Wright, Mabel Palmer Lillian Doty and Emma Budworth. Each of the young ladies read an essay. The exercises consisted of music, singing, and recitations. Principal Clement delivered an address congratulating the young ladies on their graduation. County Superintendent Fisher made a few remarks and presented the graduates with their diplomas.

The County Board of Education held a special meeting at the Court House this morning and prepared questions for the coming teachers' examination.

Nearly all the county schools will be closed this week.

There will be a number of vacancies in the country schools this vacation, and now is the time for the young ladies seeking positions to see the school trustees.

Flag-raising exercises took place at the Irvington school on Thursday. The exercises were largely attended, and much enthusiasm was displayed. Rev. Mr. McCullough offered the prayer, after which J. E. Wamsley gave a history of the American flag. His address was loudly applauded. Col. Storrin of Philadelphia was then introduced and delivered a splendid address. The flag drill, by thirty girls, was the feature of the exercises, and they were applauded loudly and long. County Superintendent Fisher made an address and congratulated the people of Irvington on having such a well-conducted school. He said that he hoped to see the time when no flag but the American would be seen in this land, as it is large enough to cover the people, and no other was needed. After the exercises, the audience was served with refreshments. Altogether, it was a great day at Irvington.

SEVENTH DAY'S CANVASS.

Still Hopeful That the Money Will be Raised for the Christian Association.

"The battle hotter, and hope of final success better. There is a 'fighting chance' for the $10,000 to finish the Young Men's building. Too busy to send in a report. You can say that full reports will be made in most of the churches tomorrow, and the latest reports will be made at 3:30 P. M., Sunday, at the rooms. The present auditorium will seat two hundred and fifty or three hundred, and all interested friends, ladies and gentlemen, are invited to meet the officers in that general mass meeting."

The above was sent in by the manager of the canvass for the Young Men's Christian Association. He showed his confidence in his face and while there is yet need of desperate work he evidently thinks the workers are equal to it. It now looks as though Oakland would outdo Los Angeles in number of givers the last day on the street. There the number reached was 520 names. Everybody who has a chance should give the boys his name. The cause is worthy. The completed building will be greatly to the credit of Oakland. No single institution should have more friends and now is the time for them to show themselves friendly.

At the Ætna Springs.

Among those recently registered at the Ætna Springs are: Mrs. M. O. Rosekrans, Miss Eugenia Rosekrans, Masters Chester and George Rosekrans, D. Shovin, L. B. Korn, Joe Choynski, Miss Ida M. Brown, Mrs. W. H. Richardson, nurse, and three children, Mrs. Magee and son, Mrs. A. A. Louderback, Miss Marion Louderback, Miss Cullen, Misses Alice and Fay Rambo, J. M. Lofstol and wife, A. Kanzee, Mrs. J. A. Schmidt, three children, and nurse, Mrs. F. Augur; C. Augur, Mrs. C. D. O'Brien, J. T. O'Brien, M. R. Millogtan, San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Beel, Miss Kate Risley, St. Helena; Mrs. William Mohar, Mrs. J. R. Griffin, Miss E. Black, Mrs. J. M. Stewart, Miss L. Stewart, Mrs. M. Stanley, Mrs. E. M. Long, Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Taylor and three children, Oakland.

Amputated the Arm.

The physicians found it necessary to amputate the arm of Gustave Lindone, the young man who was accidentally shot at Sunol while out hunting. Drs. Legler and Crowley performed the operation at the Receiving Hospital and the arm was taken off near the shoulder. Lindone will be removed this afternoon from the Receiving Hospital to his home at 816 Twentieth street.

Christmas Literature Made in Summer.

THE AUTHOR LIVES IN THE FUTURE.

Books Read on the Train—What Certain Publishers Think "Attract Men" in Books.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

NEW YORK, June 9, 1890.

The summer months are in one sense the busiest in the literary world, for it is now that all the plans are formulated for the holiday season. The authors are writing their Thanksgiving poems and their Christmas stories, the illustrators have their minds full of snow scenes and Christmas bells, while the publishers are getting ready for the holiday material, which in a month will be complete in their hands.

WRITING CHRISTMAS STORIES IN SUMMER.

The literary man is distinctly a creature of the future. What is the present with his reading public is almost forgotten past with the author. And with the growth of our magazines, necessitating the preparation of their features much ahead of publication, this is becoming more and more so all the time. The popular magazines are now preparing their holiday issue very nearly a year ahead of publication, and by midsummer he is an easy editor who has not all his holiday features illustrated and in type. The public is almost loth to believe that Christmas stories are written in the first month of summer, and in many cases while the trees are laden with the first buds of spring. Only last week I was at the home of a famous author, who, as she handed me a holiday story she had just finished, remarked in the most matter-of-fact manner: "In two weeks I hope to send you my New Year's work, and surely before July 1st you shall have my Easter story." I tell these facts chiefly for the benefit of a very large portion of the writing public, who imagine that if they send a Christmas poem to an editor by November 1st it is in plenty of season. "I always conceive my next Christmas work during the Christmas before, when on all sides the holiday flavor is about me," said a well-known and successful writer in my hearing not long ago, and therein lies a valuable hint for the unsophisticated writer.

AN AUTHOR'S RETIRED LIFE.

A friend of mine recently called upon Mary Cowden Clarke, the Shakespearian writer. She lives almost a retired life at her beautiful villa, Novella, in Genoa, Italy, and leads an almost ideal existence. She has a comfortable competency, and writes so little that she may almost be said as doing nothing. Her home has a pronounced literary atmosphere in every room, and you can scarcely turn round but you meet some reminder of the great bard of Avon. She has one of the complete Shakespearian libraries in existence, and this portion of her collection of books is alone worth thousands of dollars. She sustains an extensive and continuous correspondence with Shakespearian scholars and sudents the whole world over, and in this part of her daily life she finds most enjoyment.

BOOKS READ ON THE TRAINS.

It is always an interesting study to watch the books which are sold by the train boys on the cars. It is a curious fact that people who read the standard authors at home, will buy and read the frothiest and lightest novels when they get on the train. Traveling on the cars seems certainly conducive to that class of nefarious literature which finds its best end when it dies at its birth. Just in the seat before me a few days ago on an eastward bound train, sat a woman whom I knew to be most fastidious in her literary tastes when at home. I have often heard her talk and lecture for an hour at a time on the light fiction of the day and its injurious effects. As the train boy came through the car hawking his books, she hailed him, and I naturally wondered if he would succeed in pleasing the fastidious palate of my literary friend. My interest was of a languid kind only, until, to my astonishment, she selected four of the very class of books which I had so often heard her condemn. She bought them, and in a few moments I doubt whether anything short of a collision would have diverted her attention from her reading. For the entire six hours of the trip she sat, engrossed in her novels, her only interruption being when I walked through the car, and, as I accidentally stumbled over a foot-cushion just in front of her chair, she greeted me, turned her book cover upward, and asked if I had read "that wonderful and soul inspiring book, 'God in His World?'"

BOOKS THAT "ATTACT MEN."

There are some publishers who, I believe, would prostitute any talent which came in their way to cater to the present low, fortunately, declining—taste for "flashy" literature—flashy, I mean, more particularly in their title or cover page. A new phase of this literary pestilence was recently told me. A young woman in New York had acquired, by diligent application and study, some little reputation as an artist, and, as she was in modest circumstances, it was her desire to make some money by the practice of her skill. Book and periodical illustration was pointed out to her as a profitable field for her to cultivate, and she went about, therefore, from place to place with samples of her work, soliciting employment. At one place she met with a cordiality of reception that surprised her. She was offered work at good prices. The man in charge informed her that the work would consist of illustrations for stories and current events of an interesting nature, and pictorial designs for the covers of paper books. The descriptive material would be supplied her, and she could work at home. She accepted the proposition promptly, and accordingly the proofs of several chapters from a story were given her, and suggestions made as to a fitting cover design, in order that she might make a trial at once. She was somewhat taken aback by reading the proofs and discovering that the story was strongly "realistic," with all which that eloquent word has come to mean. She endeavored to make the best and most artistic illustrations she could, however, and soon after submitted them for examination. The man eyed them closely, then hesitated a moment.

"Well, they are good in their way, but not just what we want," he said at length.

"I would be glad to alter them according to your suggestions," she answered.

"To tell the truth, these wouldn't do at all. What we want you to give us is something broader and more sensational, something—well, something that will attract men. You know what I mean, I think, do——"

She never gave him time to finish. She did know what he meant, and accordingly she left without more ado.

A NEW USE FOR A GOOD BOOK.

This suggests a recent paper edition of Rousseau's "Confessions" that I have seen on some bookstands. I alluded some weeks ago to "suggestive titles," but this is an instance of a suggestive cover page. The edition is gotten up to resemble in style the most lurid French novel. On the cover page is a picture of a reclining female, evidently drawn purposely to "attract men." Above her head, in large red letters, is the deeply significant word, "Confessions," while beneath it, in small, obscure letters, runs "of J. J. Rousseau." The cover is made evidently to sell the book by suggesting that it is highly sensational and worse. Every one who has read Rousseau's "Confessions" will appreciate the disappointment of the man who buys the book on the representation of this cover and in anticipation of a feast of sensation.

SUMMER LITERARY GOSSIP.

Mrs. Margaret Deland is one of the few authors who find it necessary to flee from her home to escape the many lucrative literary offers which come to her, and accordingly she has gone to Europe. "They tempt me," she says, "I accept, and before I am aware of it, I have positively more work in hand than I could do had I two pairs of hands, and worked night and day."

"No, my dear, no writing for me for the present. I have positively nothing under way, and shall attempt nothing until my Lionel's health has entirely come back to him," said Frances Hodgson Burnett recently to a lady friend who inquired after her literary plans.

The poems of the King of Sweden fill four volumes, and he has just completed reading the proofs. He has written in five languages, and there is a sprinkling of prose in the work.

A volume of short stories, representing the work of twelve of the younger authors of today, is shortly to be issued as an experiment. The volume is entitled "A Round Dozen," and has been compiled and prepared for publication by Frederic E. McKay of Harvard University. The names of the contributing authors are: Clinton Scollard, Clyde Fitch, Oscar Fay Adams, William Murray Graydon, Edward Irenæus Stevenson, Case Bull, Matthew White, Jr., William D. Moffat, Frederic Edward McKay, and Mabel Louise Fuller, Jane G. Austin and Emma V. Sheridan.

Paul B. Du Chaillu is as unique in his habits as he is in appearance, and his appearance in the offices of one of his publishers is a certain guarantee that he may be found there at all times of the day so long as he is in town. He always makes his publisher's offices his stopping places, and though he be absent for years at a time, he very quickly becomes an everyday affair after his first appearance wherever he strays. He is a tireless traveller, and flits from New York to London, and from London to Africa and Egypt as if they were journeys from New York to Brooklyn.

Jerome K. Jerome sends over word that he is writing a book which will be very similar in style to his "Idle Thoughts of an Idle Fellow"—which, by the way, has just reached its one-hundred thousandth in England.

An English publisher is going to give London a new edition of James Russell Lowell's works next autumn, which, in typography, binding, etc., will eclipse any of the American editions, it is said.

I doubt whether Sara Bernhardt's autobiography, which is being written for her by one of the editors of Figaro, will be as successful as its projectors think for, I know that several advance chapters of it have gone begging around several New York literary shops at $100 a chapter, for newspaper or magazine publication, and failed to find a purchaser.

A Remarkable Forecast.

The remarkable forecast of the growth of population in the United States, made by Elkana Watson, in 1815, is exciting some interest, in view of the probable results of the census of this year. Mr. Watson was a patriot of the revolutionary period, who, in 1815, formulated a series of estimates of the probable growth of the population of the United States, and these estimates, as will appear from the table given below, were almost identical with the results for nearly half a century after the prophecy was made. After that period came the war of the rebellion, which exercised a disturbing influence on the results and caused them to fall below the estimates. The table giving actual results in connection with Watson's estimates is as follows:

Year.	Population. Census results.	Watson's estimates.	P. c. of inc. Actual.	Watson's.
1790	3,929,214
1800	5,308,483		35.10
1810	7,239,881		36.38
1820	9,633,822	9,625,734	33.06	12.82
1830	12,866,020	12,833,645	33.55	33.31
1840	17,069,453	17,116,526	32.67	33.37
18 0	23,191,876	23,185,365	35.87	35.46
1860	31,443,321	31,753,821	35.58	36.95
1870	38,558,371	42,328,432	22.63	33.36
1880	50,155,783	56,450,241	30.09	33.39
1890	....	77,266,989	.....	36.88
1900		100,355,985		29.88

Average increase for nine censuses, 32,77.
Average increase for eight censuses, omitting 1870, the first census after the late war, 34.01.

The deduction to be drawn from this table is that it is possible to forecast for something like half a century the growth of population, if we bar out internal convulsions of a nature to cause a lessening of the rate of growth. It seems clear, that for long periods the operating causes in this regard remain constant. It is also clear that, notwithstanding the large foreign immigration, the rate of increase is now less than it was in Watson's time, and this, as well as the war, causes the continued divergence of the estimates and results. This divergence is largely due now to the fact that there is a large decline in the birth rate of the children of native born American parents. The school census of Alameda county for the present year illustrates this tendency very forcibly, where it appears that, although native born parents are in a considerable majority in the county, yet their children are largely outnumbered by those of the foreign born parents.

SPEAKER REED, in a recent speech to the Home Market Club of Boston, made a novel political use of the theological doctrine of the perseverance of the saints. He said:

It is a good doctrine for both worlds. It is easy to be a camp-meeting saint, where the air is filled with enthusiasm, and it is easy to become a part and parcel of the multitude, but it is the long pull that tests the genuineness of saintship. The real test of the Republican is in the off year. If you do your duty then, you are in condition to go up higher. Human nature is incapable of prolonged virtue. It is hard to always keep the people up to the Republican programme. The faithful Republican is always longing for a portion of his rest here on earth, but, from personal experience, I can assure you he never gets it. When anything is needed to be accomplished in this country, it always devolves upon the Republican party to do it.

We hope that none of our political saints will take occasion to backslide this year. Our political sinners are all right.

IT is a little early in the season for snake stories, and it would have been kinder in the Stockton Independent to withhold its description of a neighboring monster for at least two months. It is too early to be told of "a hideous-looking thing, in a small clearing made by squirrels, with the head raised four or five feet above a coil as large as a small wagon wheel. The monster's head was flat and as wide as two hands, and his forked tongue ran out several inches. Of course, the man who saw it had no gun.

THE late Thomas A. Hendricks may be added to the roll of posthumous sufferers by the monument fever. This is the American purgatory, in which our worthies suffer by proxy in bronzen marble. The American statesman, in a stone or metal frock coat and trousers might be useful as a political scarecrow, and the statue of Hendricks, as shown in a picture printed in the Indianapolis News is fit for nothing else.

THE directors of the Stockton Insane Asylum spent several thousand dollars in boring a well, which they expected would furnish water for irrigation. Now they have their well, but an analysis of the water shows that is wholly unfit for irrigation, but an excellent cure for diabetes. It won't do to fool with water.

A Means of Sanitation.

The means for the disposal of city refuse has been under consideration of the City Council and Board of Health for more than a year, but nothing has as yet been done. Nevertheless it is an important sanitary matter, and it is worth while to review what other cities are doing in this regard. Chicago has recently adopted the plan known as the Mann furnace or incinerator, which has proved so successful at Montreal. One of the furnaces consumes from 50 to 70 cubic yards per day of 12 hours, and the cost runs from $3000 to $6000 per furnace. Other systems in use are as follows:

The Engle Furnace, of the Engle Sanitary and Cremation Company. Office, Des Moines, Iowa.

The Rider Garbage Furnace, Pittsburg, Penn.

The Vivartas Furnace, of the Cremating and Refuse Company, Seymour & Smith, secretary, Plainfield, N. J.

The Vienna or Merz process, represented by "The Universal Extractor and Construction Company," Buffalo, N. Y. In this the grease is removed by means of benzine, and the residue used as a fertilizer. Heat is used to remove moisture and to dry rather than to destroy. There are specimens of the Engle furnace in use in Minneapolis, Des Moines, Milwaukee and at Coney Island; and in New York, at the foot of East Sixteenth street; of the Rider, at Pittsburg; of the Merz, at Buffalo and Chicago.

Most of these deal with garbage, street sweepings, night soil, cesspool material, etc.

The Engle system, in use at Minneapolis, is regarded as quite successful. Dr. S. S. Kilring of that city gives some particulars of its workings and the cost:

"An estimate of the expenses of operating the Engle crematory in Minneapolis for a period of five days, during which the furnace was worked by three men entirely new to the task, two of whom were on duty by day and one by night, gives the following facts and figures:

"Thirty-three horses, fifty-nine dogs, 103 barrels of hotel and commission house refuse, twelve loads of market offal, seventy loads of manure, weighing in all over 200 tons, were consumed in five days.

"Total cost of labor and fuel for this period $38 25, or $7 65 per day, the entire weight of refuse being destroyed at a cost of 19 cents per ton. The ash deposited in the course of the consumption of this material is exceedingly small in quantity, weighing less than 200 pounds per day."

It is not exactly a savory subject, but it is a sanitary question, calling for attention, and in that view the information here collected is useful.

Past Finding Out.

Chronicle.

The captain of the Oakland ferryboat which was the scene of the latest suicide, plaintively asks why people jump off the ferryboats and create excitement among a crowd of people when they could just as well make their exit off a quiet wharf. This is one of those things which no fellow can find out, but it must be that the very presence of a crowd serves as a stimulus to the half-crazed person who is seeking to end his life. To the vagaries of the half-demented no one has yet furnished any clew.

THE STING OF HUMOR.

Unintentional Wounding of the Feelings of an Estimable Lady.

In last Saturday's TRIBUNE appeared a communication from our correspondent "San Francisco" which some people have taken for an unmerited fling at Mrs. L. A. Spaulding of the Hotel Bello Vista, San Francisco, and her husband, the late Dr. Volney Spaulding. If the article in question did a wrong, it was unintentional. Mrs. Spaulding is one of the leaders of San Francisco society, entirely above reproach, and beloved by everyone. Her social position is so secure, that she cannot be harmed by unthinking and humorous allusions. Her charities are so gracious, and her social tact so noticeable, that her parlors are one of the principal resorts for people of refinement and culture. As for the late Dr. Spaulding, he was a physician of high standing and wide reputation. He had hosts of friends, and, at his death, was generally mourned. At one time, he met financial reverses, but, through all his monetary troubles, retained the respect of his friends and the esteem of the community in which he lived. He was a generous, open-hearted man, whose kindliness has lived after him.

WILL DO WHAT HE CAN.

Senator Hearst on the Harbor Appropriation.

Charles D. Pierce, President of the Board of Trade, has received the following communication from Senator George Hearst relative to the proposition to provide that half of the appropriation for Oakland harbor shall be expended in improving the present harbor:

U. S. SENATE, WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6, 1890.

Charles D. Pierce, Esq., President of Oakland Board of Trade, Oakland, Cal.—DEAR SIR: Your communication of May 29th, with accompanying petition and memorial, has been received.

I have filed the papers referred to with the proper committee, and will do all in my power to secure the insertion of the amendment you suggest.

Yours very truly,
GEORGE HEARST.

From Wyoming.

Officer Aldrich last evening arrested two boys named Willie and Thomas Sears aged 13 and 15 years respectively, and booked them at the City Prison as runaways. The boys said they had just arrived from Evanston, Wyoming, walking and beating their way on railway trains. They said they had lived on a ranch with their step-father, but that he had treated them so badly that they decided to run away. They will be held until their parents can be communicated with.

THE DAYS IN JUNE.

Nothing So Rare Except Society Gatherings.

SO "THE MEDDLER" RUNS TO TAFFY.

The Young Men Who Went to the German Ball—There Are Only a Few of Us Left and We're Going.

Miss Claire Ralston has, during the past week, been having a delightful time under the shade of the famous oaks about Menlo Park, where she has been visiting with her small brother. Miss Ralston has been an Oakland girl from her youth up and now is ranked among the great beauties of the State. Her mother, like Mrs. Orr, is even handsomer than the daughter. Miss Ralston and Miss Evelyn Shepard are great friends and I have frequently found the one at the house of the other. More Oakland people know Miss Ralston than Miss Shepard, strange as that may seem, for the Shepards are among our first families both socially and chronologically; but Miss Shepard's father, a millionaire by the way, sent her away to Miss Porter's school for a couple of years and rather deprived us of the opportunity of knowing her better. Since she returned I have had the fortune to see a good deal of her, and find her one of the most charming of friends. The Shepard family is made up altogether of girls, and it is a pleasure to know any of them, for more grace and intellectuality cannot be found in any family in Oakland.

Speaking of the Shepards reminds me of Miss Perry, a great friend of theirs, whom every one knows. It will pain many of her friends to know that she has had to go to France on account of her health, having been completely prostrated this last spring. She spent some time at that more than useful institution, the Fabiola, and only left for sunny France a little more than a week ago.

Miss Kate Shepard, you know, married Mark Kerr, a brother of sleight-of-hand Kenneth we all remember so well. Kenneth Kerr was certainly a very entertaining fellow, but after the first two or three times I met him, he began to grow a little insipid. Most of the girls agree with me, I think, though some few of them still hold out that he is just the dearest fellow alive, and are longing for him to come back again. I am afraid that such of them as are in the wanting humor, will have to want; for Kenneth is in Washington now, and if he moves at all, he will take up his old abode in Utah, among the Mormons. Mark Kerr, by the way, has been ordered to Alaska on an indefinite sort of an exploring expedition, so I presume Mrs. Kerr, nee Shepard, will be with us for the Summer and Autumn. She has always been a great friend of Mrs. Richards, formerly Miss Kate Bancroft, who has a pleasant home in sunny San Rafael.

I hear that the Hubbards are going away in a few days, up north, I believe, to visit the two eldest of the family, who are living somewhere in the neighborhood of Seattle. Sam went to the High School when I did. Oh, yes, I am a native! You needn't be surprised! I remember Harry Flint, too, and his cousin, Ed Flint, the latter since married to pretty Miss Scott. I can hardly imagine Ed Flint married, but married he is, and a fine baby he has, too. But that is neither here nor there.

Then there was Jim Dean. Of course he is considerably younger than the others of whom I have spoken, but do you recollect him? I say do you recollect "him" for Jim has kept so much to himself of late that I, for one, have hardly had the opportunity of seeing him even, much less of speaking with him. Jim has grown into a very nice looking young fellow of late years, and it is a pity we can see no more of him.

Harry Adams is going to take a trip East, I understand, and will leave us all by our lonelies for the space of two whole long months. Just think of it; two moons without Harry. We girls must all wear the usual badge of mourning. Pray, Harry, don't be gone longer than sixty days. We really could not permit it, you know.

There are only a few of us left. The Knowles have gone toward the rising sun, and, goodness only knows when we will see them home again. Not until they have done Newport, Martha's Vineyard, New Bedford, where they anciently came from, and other fashionable and non-fashionable resorts.

People are now talking of a new engagement between two of our young people, who have often figured in my pages at one time or another. But really it is not new at all, so I am not going to say anything more about it, and those who are at all bright will know what I mean, and those that are stupid—well, I don't care whether they do or not. The sister of the young lady is unfortunately quite ill, and it may be many days before she will be able to get out again. Let us hope that her illness will terminate speedily in a rapid recovery.

I'm afraid it's little we poor girls know of the doings of our beaux on the other side of the page. I hear every little while of some freak of the night which opens my eyes and sets me to wondering whether there isn't a great deal which I can never be told. I sometimes long to cross the border and see with my own eyes the bright-cheeked apples on the forbidden tree of knowledge. Why is it that I must live forever a dweller on the threshold? I wish I could don male attire and go slumming, but they say a girl always gives herself away because she cannot crowd enough pomposity into her stride.

However, these wicked remarks are called up by a very innocent bit of amusement. I'm told that a lot of our men who are prominent in the german during the german season were perspiring away at the genuine German ball at Germania Hall Tuesday night. They danced and danced and danced with any of the little Deutsche girls who would acknowledge their beaming smiles.

There was handsome Jim Brady (sure), so I'm told, mixing that beautiful blarney of his with German patois and pretzels. Robert M. Fitzgerald was one of the fairest of the fair. I wonder why he don't get married? He has a good practice and good habits—all the bad habits of the family having centered in his brother, that quite "Little Fitz." But what is "Steady Bob" doing at a German ball. They tell me he has the political bee buzzing under his hat. They say Charlie Boardman was there in full dress and dancing just as divinely as he always did before he was married and settled down. Cleve Dam couldn't dance much, they say, because of that game leg, which gives him that distingue wobble in his walk. Ed Vinzent was also one of the lovely beings in the dance. I wonder if he's really engaged to the tall blonde? It takes so little to engage a young man and a maid in this gossipy town. One party will do it, or just a little drive before going away. Ah, me! Why don't the men propose? Every girl ought to have her day.

They tell me that an attractive young grass widow in one of the fashionable boarding houses has gone away and deprived a red checked young man and a red cheeked old one of their favorite occupation of tending the baby.

The engagement is announced to me of Miss Emma G. Welch, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Welch, formerly of Virginia City, Nevada, to George Boole, of the firm of Dunham, Carrigon, Hayden & Co., of San Francisco. The wedding will be very quiet and will take place at St. John's Episcopal Church, corner Valencia and Fifteenth streets, San Francisco, June 23d, at 11:30 A. M. They will reside in Seattle, Washington. So glad.

R. G. Brown has returned from White Sulphur Springs.

A Surprise at Lorin.

One of the events in Lorin which comprises part of the school trustee excitement, took place Tuesday evening in the shape of a surprise to Mr. Barrows, one of the school trustees, in view of his expected removal to San Francisco. A whole host of his neighbors assembled at Mr. Harmon's at 8 o'clock and thence marched to the scene of action, taking the house and its occupants by storm. The house was soon crowded by friends of the gentleman, who spent a very pleasant evening in every way. Recitations, vocal and instrumental solos and choruses followed one another in quick succession in one room, while in the other a few of the sprightly ones danced to the music improvised for the occasion. At half-past ten refreshments consisting of cake and ice cream, were served and then the former order of events were resumed. Mr. Barrows and family were fully assured of the kind regard held for them by their many neighbors, among whom are the following who attended the party: Mr. and Mrs. William Barrows, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Harmon, Mr. and Mrs. H. Her antics started Mrs. Marston, who also commenced to sing and shout. The two women kept this up until the asylum was reached, and the officer was exceedingly delighted to get rid of his charges.

THE VETERAN

Denies He Embezzled a Few Dollars From the Union.

D. Howell was tried in the Police Court this morning before a jury, on a charge of embezzlement of $7 25 belonging to Lincoln command of the Union Veterans' Union. The complaint against him was made by Frank Sebrey, who charged that he retained that amount of money from the proceeds of certain entertainment tickets which the defendant had agreed to sell. The latter was represented by attorney M. C. Chapman. From testimony it was learned that Howell had turned in $10 and still retains a balance of $6 25, which he refused to pay over to the committee in charge of the affair, although asked for it on different occasions. When asked for the money it was reported he said he would not pay the balance until he got ready.

Howell's defense was that the committeemen were trying to get the money from him without giving a receipt and he refused to pay it for that reason. The case was given to the jury at noon, after a number of witnesses had been examined.

ANOTHER GOOD MAN.

Charles Dana Barrows, D. D., Concludes to Resign His Pastorate.

Some months ago one of the THUNDER'S San Francisco correspondents told of how the escapades of a prominent San Francisco minister, who was leading a double life, were generally known to newspaper men, who refrained from telling the story out of consideration for the cause of religion. A few weeks ago the Illustrated World accused the Rev. Charles Dana Barrows, D. D., the eloquent pastor of the First Congregational Church of San Francisco with gross immoralities. At about this time Dr. Barrows went East. His congregation demanded an explanation, and he replied that he would come back and answer everything. But instead he sent his resignation, giving his wife's illness as the reason for his failure to return. The resignation was accepted. The Doctor's friends say he had really resigned before the publication of the scandalous charges. They believe in him yet.

The regular progress in the calendar was interrupted, and, at the request of Morrill, another Senate bill was taken up, to establish an educational fund and apply the proceeds of public lands and the receipts from certain land grants to railroad companies to a more complete endowment and support of colleges for the advancement of scientific and industrial education. Morrill addressed the Senate in advocacy of the bill.

But an Explosion of Nitro-Glycerine Forty Miles Away.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 14.--It is now learned that what was taken to be an earthquake at 2:30 this morning was caused by an explosion of five tons of nitro-glycerine in Casteline & Co's. works near Findlay, Ohio, forty miles from here. Since 1885 he has been prominently connected with the fruit interests of the valley. Mrs. Warren and her daughter, Florence, are now visiting in Warren R. I.

NOTHING TO BRAG OF.

The Operation Which Excited London Was a Common One Here.

Last Saturday's TRIBUNE contained an article which referred to a feat of surgical skill which the telegraph from London reported and which Dr. Maher of this city had anticipated. This surgical feat was deemed of such importance in London that it was telegraphed under the ocean and across the continent and consisted of drawing water from around the lung. Inquiry seems to indicate that the operation is by no means an uncommon or an unusual one. It has been performed nearly every week and sometimes oftener, at the Oakland Hospital by Dr. Woolsey and members of his staff of physicians. Dr. A. M. Taylor recently performed the operation at the hospital on Mrs. Edward Gates, a wealthy lady living on the San Leandro road, without the use of ether, chloroform or other anesthetic.

A. H. LATHROP'S DAUGHTER.

A Kentucky Banker Wants to Learn Her Address.

He is informed that she was married to a gentleman of French descent and is living in Oakland. He does not know the name of her husband. Mr. Winslow's letter intimates that he has good news for the heirs of A. H. Lathrop if any can be found.

IN THE FATHERLAND.

An Angry Meeting Condemns Emperor William.

Plain Talk by the Social Democrats. A German Colonial Council to be Appointed.

BERLIN, June 14.--It has been decided to appoint a Colonial Council to take cognizance of the incressing mass of colonial work. The Council will be composed of persons who have won recognition as explorers in Africa and other countries.

An enormous meeting of social Democrats was held in Kolk's brewery, at Moabit suburb. The immense building was packed to suffocation, and thousands who were unable to obtain admission held overflow meetings. The meeting was very exciting, and the speakers freely criticized the socialist and fair policy of the Emperor. The meeting passed a resolution censuring the Kaiser for his labor rescripts. The day was past, the resolution set forth, that the men of Germany could be governed by rescripts. The people demand a full and unrestrained share in the government of the empire, and this could not be with safety denied them.

BACK AT BUCK.

More Trouble Over the Ownership of the Maison Piedmont.

E. Cusin and J. Ernest, formerly proprietors of the Maison Piedmont restaurant, who recently failed, have filed an answer to the complaint of C. P. H. Buck, and deny that they owe him $4506 or any other sum. Cusin declares that Buck purchased from him for $1,900 his interest in the business, and also bought a promissory note made by Ernest for $350. Buck paid Cusin $1,400, and no more, but failed to meet Cusin's liabilities in the business, as agreed upon. Therefore Mr. Cusin wants $350 and an accounting.

Ernest asserts that he was hoodwinked into making a bill of sale of his interest in the business to Buck and never received a cent. He now asks to have the bill of sale set aside.

The Veterans' Union.

At the regular monthly open meeting of the Union Veterans' Union held last Tuesday in Dania Hall, addresses were made by Colonel Powers, Officer of the Day Darnell, Quartermaster Baker, Colonel Stiles and others. The following programme was also rendered: Recitation, a humorous Dutch rendition of "Barbara Fritchie," Mr. Darnell; recitation, Mr. Baker; original song, "Some Things I Don't Like to See," Colonel Stiles; piano solo, Mrs. Stiles.

In addresses, some of the veterans manifested strong opposition to the display of Confederate flags in the South.

After the retirement of the visitors a business meeting was held for the purpose of taking some action in reference to the arrest of Ben Howell on a charge of embezzling $6 25. They intend drawing up resolutions to publish in the papers, setting forth their explanation.

The Terrace Baths.

A new advertisement of the famous Alameda bathing resort appears on another page of today's TRIBUNE. The Terrace has enjoyed an unusually large patronage this season, but it all were acquainted with its advantages and comforts for bathing, its spacious tanks and dressing-rooms would be found inadequate to take care of the crowd. Mr. Fisher, the new manager, goes about his business in the proper and popular way, and if the public don't accord him a greater patronage than the Terrace has ever before enjoyed, it will be because public appreciation is at low ebb. Albeit the Terrace is doing a fine business and affording much pleasurable recreation to a great number of people daily.

An unusual throng of people is visiting the Yosemite Valley this summer. The attractions of the valley also, are unusual, because the great rainfall of last winter filled the streams so full that the bulk of water flowing over the falls is much greater than usual in June. Many of the tourists are camping in the valley, while others are living at the hotels.

HOWLING MANIACS.

A Noisy Night Season at the County Jail.

COMPETITORS FOR FIRST POSITION.

News of the Courts on a Saturday at the Beginning of the Annual Vacation.

Deputy Sheriff Morrison had a very lively time at the County Jail last night trying to quiet two raving maniacs, and prevent them from injuring themselves or other prisoners. Frank Doyle was arrested at the instance of his sister, and when brought to the jail he was suffering from delirium tremens. He tried to kill two of the prisoners and threatened to burn the jail down. When he found that he could not carry out his threats he spent the night in howling.

Edward Moracelli, a tramp, is also a raving maniac and a dangerous prisoner. The cries of Doyle in the cell adjoining him made him wild, and he too commenced to howl. Morrison's efforts to quiet him were without avail, and the two maniacs spent the night trying to see which could make the most noise.

THE PASSING SHOW

Order of Merit of Three American Plays.

NO NEW THEATER FOR OAKLAND.

Lora Hollis an Understudy in the "Senator" Company—"The City Directory."

The Henrietta.
Shendandoah.
The Senator.

What is your vote?

Each play has its partisans—bitter partisans at that—and a parlor debate upon the merits in comparison sometimes is equally tense with a controversy upon the subject of all subjects most likely to produce lingual war, religion. Here are three modern American plays, made by Americans, played by Americans to American audiences. Each of the plays is sufficiently good to merit criticism. Each has abundant matter upon which to base the flatulent commendation of the partisan upon the one he most admires. Each has sound stuff for praise and not one of them has matter for condemnation. The only question is which is the best. An answer to this question should not be a opinion. It should be a conclusion from intelligent analysis and comparison. I, being anonymous, venture to announce that the emotional and therefore uncritical maiden who gigg'es with Josie Armstrong in The Senator, weeps with the fiery and pretty confederate in Shenandoah and grins at "Bertie" in The Henrietta promptly pronounces The Senator the best; Shenandoah next and The Henrietta last.

You know, nothing, little girling, but you have an idea of what you like, and have an equal right with myself to express what you think. I have a larger audience, but one less sympathetic than you have, and I am not emotional and never dampened a programme with a drop of dew from a touched heart. I'll tell you something.

Of the three plays, The Henrietta is the best—the clearest, brightest, cleverest composition. Shenandoah is next. It has more hurrah and thrill and less of literary merit. The Senator is not in rank with the dramas of Bronson Howard. It is a great, big farce—bright and amusing and interesting—not a great play, and it is played by one of the best companies ever gathered on any stage.

The Senator and The Henrietta, and even Shenandoah a little bit, show development of a character new to the American stage, a kind of a cisatlantic "Chumley," expressed in "Bertie, the Lamb," in "Lieutenant George Schuyler, U. S. A.," and just a little bit in "Captain Heartsease, U. S. A." All of them are noble young fellows, with more kinks in their manners than in their names and—I like them.

Not very often is a play so superbly acted as The Senator by the company now at the Bush Street Theater. Crane himself is no more thorough an actor, an artist I suppose I should call him, than Georgie Drew Barrymore, and none of the cast suffer by comparison with the star. Little Miss Stuart is as charming a "Josie Armstrong" as could be found. Mr. Frawley plays his unique part of the young lieutenant so remarkably well that he makes it a central character in the drama. The other characters, "Count Von Strahl," "Richard Vance," "Mabel Denman," "Secretary Armstrong," are so evenly excellent that an article about them becomes a succession of commendatory adjectives.

The Senator will not be played in Oakland. The contract has been cancelled. The company, after concluding its engagement in San Francisco, this evening, will play in Sacramento, and thence will go direct to Tacoma.

By the way, Lora Hollis, daughter of Mrs. Laura D. Fair, is an understudy with the Senator Company.

The hopes of the Oakland people of having a new theater building are temporarily dashed by a change in the plans of John S. Drum and associates, who had contemplated erecting a temple to Thespis on Washington street. These gentlemen have now decided that they will put up a building suitable for business and office purposes.

There is another American play, a story of the civil war, Held by the Enemy, a drama made by William Gillette. This will be played at the Oakland Theatre on Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week. The scene of this drama is a southern city occupied by the United States troops. Through the war scenes, which are unusually thrilling, there runs a vein of bright comedy. In the company are Adele Belgarde, pretty Minnie Dupree, Miss Alice Grey and Messrs. R. W. Stokes, Joline Butler, H. A. Morey, E. J. McCullough, George Backus, Joseph Humphreys, Frank Harvey, J. H. Cody, T. A. Howe, W. J. Gardiner, H. Phillips, James Stanton, Walter Cook, William Francis and Edward Stoddard.

San Francisco Theaters.

Solemn Wilson Barrett makes place at the Baldwin Theater for the London Gaiety Theater Company, with Florence St. John in the operatic burlesque Faust Up To Date. The first performance will be given next Monday evening.

Tomorrow, (Sunday) evening, the annual benefit of J. J. Gottlob, Manager of the Bush Street Theater, will take place. A dramatic, operatic and vaudeville entertainment will be given.

The California Theater management announces for next week Denman Thompson's celebrated play, The Old Homestead, but does not announce Denman Thompson.

The play at the Bush Street Theater next week will be A Long Lane, or Pine Meadow.

Gilbert and Sullivan's Gondoliers at the Tivoli.

Bobby Gaylor's An Irish Arab at the Alcazar.

Splinters From the Boards.

Stuart Robson's profit for the past season—his first alone—was $69,-906 90.

Madame Sarah Bernhardt will not be able to make her contemplated tour in France, although she is reported to be recovering from the affection of the knee joints she is said to have sustained in posing in armor as Joan of Arc.

C. H. Hoyt's latest play will be called A Trip to Chinatown. Mr. Hoyt is now at his summer home, Charleston, N. H.

Miss Rosabel Morrison has developed into a vehement disciple of Madame Jenness-Miller, and can be seen nearly every afternoon in Central Park airing her divided skirts astraddle of a fine bay single footer. She is as graceful and pretty on horseback as she is on the stage, and is quite a center of attraction.

If the following from Dunlop's Stage News is true M. B. Curtiss's new play is not a great success: "The Shatchen will probably not go on the road next season, owing to its comparative failure, and to the fact that when the play was booked it was with the understanding that Lewis Morrison was in the cast. When it was found that it was never Mr. Morrison's intention to go out with it the dates were cancelled.

At the Oakland Theater on June 23d and 24th, Brady's After Dark will be played. On the 26th Wilson Barrett will play Hamlet and on the 27th Silver King. In August will come The Old Homestead and The City Directory; during September Scanlan will be here and in October Dixey, The Crystal Slipper, T. W. Keene, The Still Alarm and the new farce comedy, A Package of Cigarettes.

J. K. Emmet, the actor, arrived at New York recently in the steamship Britannic, after rather a remarkable European trip, which he made in the short time of two weeks. His course was considered somewhat erratic two weeks ago, when seemingly without having had any previous intention of doing so, Mr. Emmet sailed for London. But he never reached there, nor did he even land, Mr. Emmet changed his mind out on the ocean, and just before the vessel reached Queenstown he was taken off by a tender, which placed him on board the outgoing Britannic. During his absence Mrs. Emmet secured her divorce on statutory grounds, and it is thought that Mr. Emmet's trip may have been to avoid defending her suit and the unpleasant notoriety connected with it.

On June 18th, The City Directory, a musical absurdity by Paul M. Potter, will have its 150th consecutive performance at the Bijou Theater, far outstripping the longest run of the the most successful piece hitherto produced at Manager Rosenquest's house. If contracts had not been signed for the immediate production of the piece in San Francisco, it would have remained at the Bijou all summer, the extraordinary receipts of its opening week having shown no sign of decreasing throughout its unusual career in New York. The list of comedians who will appear during the forthcoming season includes the names of Charlie Reed, William Collier, Ignacio Martinetti, William F. Mack, Alfred Hampton, Charles V. Seaman, Burt Haverly, Joseph Jackson, Miss May Irwin, Miss Flora Irwin, Miss Amelia Glover, Miss Rosa France, Miss Bessie Cleveland, Miss Josie Sadler, Miss Mayn Kelso, Miss Lillian Pendergrass. W. S. Mullaly is still musical director.

The Seven Stages.

Only a baby,
Kissed and caressed,
Gently held to a mother's breast.

Only a child,
Toddling alone,
Brightening now its happy home.

Only a boy,
Trudging to school,
Governed now by a sterner rule.

Only a youth,
Living in dreams,
Full of promise life now seems.

Only a man,
Battling with life,
Shared in now by a loving wife.

Only a father,
Burdened with care,
Silver threads in dark-brown hair.

Only a graybeard,
Toddling again,
Growing old and full of pain.

Only a mound,
O'ergrown with grass,
Dreams unrealized—rest at last.

Deafness Can't Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

The Standard

IN DAYS OF OLD was carried by a man whose courage was beyond question. By one whose bravery could be relied upon to rally fainting hearts and turn the tide of battle. He was foremost in every charge. For the glory of planting his standard on the enemy's rampart he freely gave his life. There are standard bearers in civil life also. They are men who labor industriously and conscientiously to raise the standard of excellence in food products and thereby aid in making life enjoyable.

SCHILLING'S BEST is one of these standards. It has not the picturesque glory of the standards of ancient chivalry, which led to death. It claims the nobler glory of leading to health and enjoyment of life those who use the culinary supplies it brands.

SCHILLING'S BEST, our standard, we intend to plant in every household. Test the articles it protects and you will honor it as we do.

SCHILLING'S BEST Spices and Flavoring Extracts, Your grocer has them. Sold only in airtight packages. Test their strength and flavor.

SOME NEW BOOKS.

A Few Recent Additions to the "Tribune" Library.

THE LIFE AND LETTERS OF RUSSIA.

A Glimpse of the Land of the White Tzar—The Worship of Browning. Physical Culture.

McCarty's "Annual Statistician and Economist" for the current year is more than up to the high standard which this indispensable book of reference has always hitherto maintained. It is a marvel of research, arrangement and accuracy, and is worth to the literary man and to the man of affairs many times the very modest price charged for it. It would be hard to mention a piece of statistical information, whether political, practical, or merely curious, that cannot be readily found in this handy volume. Published by the compiler, L. P. McCarty, San Francisco and New York. Price, $4 cloth; leather, $5.

A Natural Method of Physical Training. Being a Practical Description of the "Checkley System" of Physiculture. By Edwin Checkley. Brooklyn, N. Y. William C. Bryant & Co.

This is a very full explanation of the method of physical training adopted after long and intelligent study, and the test of years' of experiment by a man who has made for himself a name as a successful trainer of athletics, both amateur and professional. His rules are as simple as they are rational, and, in the present day, when the gospel of muscular Christianity is so generally both preached and practiced, this volume ought to obtain a ready and extensive sale. Especially valuable are the chapters in the book, "Training of Women" and "A Word About Children." The man who is burdened with too much adipose tissue will also find some very valuable advice to aid him in getting rid of the "too, too solid."

Poet Lore; A monthly magazine devoted to Shakespeare, Browning, and the comparative study of literature. May number. Boston, Damrell & Upham. Price, 25 cents.

The title of this periodical, even if there were no explicit statement on the title page, would at once suggest to the intelligent reader the idea of Boston as the place of publication. It is, in fact, a sample of the intellectual products of the city where they have a "corner" on culture, and such a sample as, probably, it is not within the province of "outer barbarians" to attempt to understand, still more to criticize. It is not given to every one, in these days, to be up to the intellectual highwater mark of Boston any more than it was possible, in Horace's days for every Tom, Dick and Harry, in Rome, adire Corinthum.

And this may be the reason why we fail, after a careful perusal of the contents, to find anything either very intelligible or very valuable in the magazine. Certainly there is nothing new given to the reader in the dilettante jottings on Shakespeare, and there is no light whatever, so far as we can see, thrown on the "palpable obscure" of Browning's poetry by the paper devoted to him. There is, however, something to be learned about Shelley's physical and intellectual life from the paper on the "Epipsychidion," but that something anything but tends to raise him in our estimation as a gentleman. The poem as annotated in the paper, shows him to be, a very fact, what he himself admitted he was, "Philanthrope, Democrat, Atheist" and the references to his various "lights-o'-love," which the writer, with great pains, digs up from the lines of the poem, only serve to show, with more glaring vividness, the incorrigible looseness of the poet's morals and the thoroughness of his—to coin and use a term of modern origin—"Victoria Woodhullism." The article is fitly concluded thus: "Shelley committed the common error of ignoring the family as the true ethical unitary cell, and, by substituting for it the individual atom, went entirely astray in his chemistry of morals." That is Bostonese.

The paper on Browning, which is entitled, "The New Poetic Form as Shown in Browning," is nothing else but an elaborate attempt to justify those numberless, and, apparently, deliberate, violations of all known rules of prosody, which, we cannot help thinking, seriously mar Browning's verse, just as similar infractions of the accepted canons of harmony harshen and detract from the unquestionable merits of much of what our own Walt Whitman has written. With all humble deference to the opinions of the numberless Browning Clubs scattered over the land, we admit that we can detect no melody in discord, and that we have as deeply rooted an objection to reading a stanza, whose unscannible lines limp in their feet, as we should have to be compelled to keep step for an hour with a man who went "dot-and-carry-one" in his natural gait.

Nor can we detect, for the life of us, the latent beauties of melody which the supremely sharp ear of the writer of the paper hears with ecstacy in sundry passages, which he triumphantly quotes, any more than we can catch the music of the spheres.

We do not deny the originality of those "kicks over the traces" which Browning so often makes. Neither do we deny the originality of "suckers" on the fruit trees in an orchard. But we hold it better, in both cases, to apply the pruning-knife for their removal, rather than to coax them into abortive maturity and fruit-bearing. We can forgive Browning his obscurity, for we do not believe he could help it, but his disregard of those rules which give us harmonious verse as the vehicle of beautiful thought, we cannot away with. It may be Wagnerian, but it is not music.

There was a Brahmin once, it is said, who so lost himself in the contemplation of his own umbilicus that he became a drivelling idiot. Seems almost as if herein were to be found a warning worth the heeding for the devotees of the cult of Browning. The premonitory symptoms of mental enfeeblement are already present and pronounced in many of them, and not the least notable of those symptoms is this magazine, and especially this particular paper.

Russia—Its People and Literature, by Emilia Pardo Bazan; Translated from the Spanish by Fannie Hale Gardiner. Chicago, A. McClurg & Co.; Price $1 25.

The somewhat sudden and, to the casual observer, not very intelligible interest in Russian literature which has manifested itself of recent years in European literary circles, and in a less, but still very appreciable, measure in this country, has resulted in the production of a number of volumes of criticism, more or less valuable according the degree of intimacy possessed by the writers in the subjects handled. Some of these volumes are of value, but the bulk of them are necessarily misleading, because glaringly inaccurate. Of the former there are some that will not only repay perusal from the nature of the information, on a most interesting subject, which they convey, but also give absolute pleasure in the reading from the elegance, purity and vigor of the style in which they are written. Such is the volume now before us. The author has thoroughly informed herself on the subjects on which she has undertaken to inform her readers, and she has brought to her work a mind accustomed, for many years, to form carefully weighed opinions on such subjects, and a pen trained in giving clear and forcible expression to those opinions. Her style—judging, of course, from the translation before us, which affords internal evidence of being a faithful and intelligent rendering of the original—is exceptionally lucid, fluent, and, frequently, epigrammatic. Take, for example, her definition of Nihilism, of which she makes a special analytical study. "It is," she says, "a revolutionary effervescence, and nothing else." Speaking of the immense extent of the Russian Empire, she describes it as being "larger than the disc of the full moon." When she comes, in her narrative of the development of the nation to the period of the European Renaissance, she makes the startling statement that "tyranny was the liberator of Russia" and that Ivan "The Terrible," whose very look made women faint, and Ivan IV., who was the first to take the title of Czar, "gifted with and guided by a saving instinct, created the nation." This apparent paradox has its parallel in Byron's famous lines:

The tyrant of the Chersonese
Was Freedom's best and bravest friend
That tyrant was Miltiades.

"Therefore, it is," she adds, "that the memory of Ivan IV. still lives in the popular imagination and the Terrible Czar, like Pedro the Cruel, of Spain, is neither forgotten nor abhorred."

Peter the Great is thus happily hit off: "The greatest providential tyrant of them all, the most extraordinary man of Russia's history, was of the house of Romanoff, successor to the extinct dynasty of the terrible Ivans. The imperial carpenter's character and destiny are not unlike those of Ivan IV. Both were precocious in intellect, both were self educated, and both cooled their hot youth in the hard school of abandonment."

The great Catharine is described as "A parricide, a usurper and libertine, who deserved the perhaps pedantic name of 'the Semiramis of the North' given her by Voltaire, who hid her delinquencies under the splendor of her intellect, the refined delicacy of her artistic tastes, her gifts as a writer, and her magnificence as a sovereign." Readers of "Don Juan" will recall a description of Catharine's character much terser, as well as very much coarser, than the above.

We have not space to do justice to the very excellent summary of Russia's history given by the Senora Mazan, but cannot refrain from reproducing the following summary of the main cause that retarded, for so many centuries, the development of Russian literature, if not, also, of Russian civilization: "Russia lacked the councils of the laws of modern rights; and, that her lack might be in nothing lacking, she lacked even the brilliant heresies of the West, the subtle rationalists and pantheists, the Abelards and Amalrics, whose followers were brilliant ignoramuses or rank bigots roused by a question of ritual. Lastly, she lacked the sunny smile of Pallas Athene and the Graces, the Renaissance, which brightened the face of Europe at the close of the Middle Ages."

Very full discussion is given to the anomalous, yet actual, existence in Russia, side by side, of despotism and democracy, to the curious phenomenon of Agrarian Communes, to the social classes, to nihilism, and to the subject of serfdom. The information given in course of this discussion is of the utmost value, especially to those who take an intelligent interest in the social questions which are now agitating the civilized world and in the ultimate solution of which Russia is evidently destined to be an important, if not, indeed, the principal, factor.

Unqualified praise cannot, however, be so readily accorded to the second part of the book—that which deals with Russian literature. In the first place the author does not show herself to be so well equipped for literary as she is for historical criticism. Not that she is by any means lacking in the keen insight into character which is so indispensable in one who undertakes to appraise the value to the world of an author's writings. Indeed, her analysis of the poets of the romantic school, Lermontoff and Puchkine, of the novelists of the realistic school, Gogol and Turguenief, of Dostoiewsky, psychologist and visionary, and of Tolstoi, nihilist and mystic, leave nothing to be desired. But what appears to be lacking principally, though by no means solely, in her equipment for the intelligent and, therefore, just appraisement of the works of the few really great Russian authors whom she takes up, is her not understanding the language in which they wrote—a fact which she naively admits in her preface, and which ought to have deterred her, one would think, from undertaking the task of discussing their works. It is for a similar reason, probably, that, with a perverted judgment, for which it is hard otherwise to account, she characterizes Sir Walter Scott's novels as "intolerably tedious in perusal."

Another cause of her very manifest unfitness for the task of adequately estimating and justly pronouncing on such literary works as the above might be found in the exclusively philosophic view which either her mental training or her natural gifts, or both, appear to compel her to take of every subject. The result must clearly be, the entire, or almost entire, absence of sympathy between the critic and the poet or novelist whose works are being criticised. As well might one set an anatomist, with his scalpel, to demonstrate the poetic grace of a statue by Praxiteles as to ask a philosopher to pronounce judgment on a lyric gem by Puchkine.

The book is, with this one exception, at once a most readable and most instructive one, and we apprehend that the subjects in the discussion of which we have indicated it as meritorious, are of far more importance for the reading public of today to be informed on than is the one subject on which we hold it to be defective.

It is only fair to add that the work of the translator appears to be of the very highest, most careful and most intelligent description. A. G.

CHURCH MEMBERS.

Words from the Pastors and the Congregations.

We congratulate the Union Church, Providence, on obtaining a pastor from Oakland, and from the Presbyterian ministry. Rev. Dr. Horton has effectively ministered to his own congregation, while interesting himself actively in the general affairs of the denomination, and in matters of concern to all good citizens, such as young men's work, temperance and education. Surely, when the leaders of the one denomination thus freely pass to be leaders in the other, comity in Home Missions should gain ground. For "we be brethren."—The Pacific (Congregational.)

He Entreated All Around Him to Pray—"Lord Jesus, Come Quickly."

The Pacific

All those who were permitted to be near the death-bed of our Brother Dwinell regard themselves as having received a wonderful moral and spiritual uplift. There was such a magic, mastery, majesty in his faith, in his bearing, in his self command, in obedience of the Spirit, while he struggled on in his mortal agony, and while he strove to exhibit, in pose, in feeling, in speech, and forethought, the peace that ruled within, that all were drawn as into some vestibule of heaven itself. Every morning of that last week of life, when the regular hour of worship arrived, he would bring all about him and have them read together, in concert, the 103d Psalm or the 131st Psalm and the 23d Psalm. Then he would have them sing, "Rock of Ages," or "Nearer, my God." Then he would have them all pray, each in turn. Afterward he would occupy himself with individuals, and with subjects, as rapidly as his short, quick breath would permit utterance—and, through all, every matter would be carried to such a lofty plane of feeling, conscience, duty, and power, as to fill them with awe and wonder and wistfulness. When the later agonies came he was beyond ordinary utterance, and prayed to be delivered from this body of death, and prayed in such pathetic tones as to thrill and pierce every hearer. He entreated them all to pray, and keep on praying, "Lord Jesus, come quickly."

TO ENFORCE DISCIPLINE.

Trial of a Special Police Officer and Two Firemen.

The Board of Police and Fire Commissioners held a special meeting yesterday afternoon to investigate charges preferred against Special Officer Batchelder by Chief Police Tompkins, and against Firemen Ennis and McGinn of Engine Company No. 3, at West Oakland, by Chief Engineer Kennedy.

Besides the three commissioners a number of police officers were in attendance as witnesses and interested spectators. The charges against Batchelder were incompetency and speaking in a disrespectful way of the chief and the commissioners. Last Sunday night the special officer arrested a drunken man, who made some resistance to him, and Officer Felley volunteered his assistance and after a severe struggle with the man who showed fight, succeeded in forcing him to the sidewalk and handcuffed him. The prisoner was left in charge of Batchelder, who allowed the man to escape as far as Twelfth and Webster streets, where Felley again captured him and got him into the patrol wagon.

A number of witnesses who had seen the trouble testified and Officer Felley testified to his part of the work. Felley was also questioned by the chief as to what he had heard Batchelder say about the Police Department and its officers and replied that on one occasion the special officer had sworn about the chief and had said that the chief was not fit to boss a dog fight and that the Commissioners were no good.

Officer Batchelder, in his own behalf denied that he had referred to the board in uncomplimentary terms.

Officer Curtiss also testified to hearing Special Batchelder use uncomplimentary language about the Chief and heard him say that he did not care a —— for the Board.

Commissioner Fitzgerald drew from the witness that this conversation had occurred at a time when Batchelder's daughter had died and he was not feeling very amiable.

In his own behalf as to allowing the prisoner to escape Batchelder testified that the prisoner was accompanying him quietly enough until Felley interfered and then the prisoner began to resist. He told of his efforts to keep the man in control and said when he escaped he was unable to follow and gave his reasons for his inability to run after him when he escaped. The Board took the matter under advisement.

The two firemen, Ennis and McGinn, were accused of disobeying one of the orders of the department, which requires horses to be hitched at each sounding of the fire gong at 12 o'clock noon and at 9 P. M., as well as at other times. The object of this was to lose no time in getting to a fire, as well as to exercise the horses. The firemen had no defense at all, and could make no reply to the charges.

The decision in this case was also reserved.

DRUNKEN TRUSTIES.

Peacefully Asleep in Each Other's Arms in the Tool House.

Although the trusties who work in the park about the City Hall are not allowed to leave the square, and a strict watch is kept on them all the time to see that they do not run away, they manage to get across the street once in a while and sometimes farther away. At the noon hour today Prisonkeeper Quackenbush went into the park to bring the two present trustees, George Hollenbeck and Frank Williams, in for lunch, and became greatly alarmed when he could not find them anywhere about the grounds. The men were missing, and it was thought they had run away, and for a while the greatest commotion prevailed. Officers hurried here and there in hopes of finding the two prisoners, and a vigorous search was instituted about the grounds. Finally, when hope of ever seeing them again had about been abandoned, the two men were found locked in each other's arms in the tool-house fast asleep and both of them dead drunk. On the floor lay a large bottle half filled with whisky and a tumbler. The men were both so drunk that they had to be carried to cells in the prison, and the whisky was confiscated. The two men are serving sentences for petty larceny, and no charges have been placed against them for the last offense. It is supposed one of them obtained some money and bought the liquor at a neighboring saloon, or else it was handed to them by some friend on the outside.

FROM FIRE AND RUST.

A New Paint Said by the Inventor to Be a Protection.

Wood Coated With the Paint Held in a Flame for an Hour and Not Burned.

During the past week two tests have been made at the office of W. F. Boardman on Eighth street, of a recently invented mineral fire proof paint, the ingredients of which are found in abundance in certain portions of this State. The paint is a mixture compounded by Frank De Conick, who is trying to interest a number of capitalists with a view to forming a company and erecting the necessary buildings for its manufacture in this city. A recent test was given at Mr. Boardman's office in the presence of George C Perkins, Prof. D. P. Sackett, W. E. Dargie, F. Chappalett, A. J. McGovern, J. E. Morris and a number of scientific gentlemen and the paint proved itself to be a wonderful compound. The first test consisted of subjecting a thin board coated with the mixture to a gas flame for over an hour continuously. At the end of the hour the board had received no injury except that it was charred where it came in contact with the blaze, but it was impossible to set it on fire. Another piece was tried for the same length of time and its whole surface was exposed to the gas flame but except carbonizing, the board was not injured in the least. The paint was applied to paper and when held over the gas it would not burn, simply charring in places. Next a Japanese napkin of tissue paper was tried but the result was the same as in the other cases, the only part injured being where the hot flame charred a hole through the thin paper. The tests are regarded as wonderful by the gentlemen witnessing them.

Mr. De Conick claims for this paint that it can be sold much cheaper than any oil paint made, and it can be manufactured in any shade desired. He is at present experimenting with it as a protection to iron, and for the past fifteen months an iron rod coated with the mixture has been submerged in a tank of water, and now it is as clean and free from rust as when first put in the tank. He is also experimenting with the paint as a coating for piles, to prevent the ravages of the teredo, but this experiment has not advanced far enough to decide whether the paint is a protection from the ravenous borer.

The secret of the paint is known only to the inventor, and the proposition he makes to capital is this. He refuses to divulge his secret to anyone at present, but proposes that a corporation be formed with a stated capital and that the company secure land and erect the necessary buildings for its manufacture. He offers to superintend the construction of the works for nothing, and when completed, he promises to make his secret known to the President and Directors of the concern, but they must pledge themselves to keep it a secret from the stockholders and the general public, and in this way he hopes to avoid competition. Mr. De Conick asks no remuneration until the works are on a paying basis, and then he only wants a percentage of the earnings of the company. In otherwords, he is willing to give his patent to the syndicate for a percentage of what they make, and will charge nothing for his secret.

Other tests are to be made at Mr. Boardman's office in the near future.

A CHINAMAN'S RUSE.

An Attempt to Bribe an Officer at the County Jail.

A Proposition to Trade Six Imported Celestials for Six Residents Who Were Waiting.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Alden while acting as jailor at the County Jail last night, met with a singular experience which goes to show what efforts Chinamen make in their attempt to secure the release of prisoners who have violated the Exclusion Act, and have been remanded back to China. In the County Jail are twenty-three Chinamen who were captured crossing the Mexican border, and are confined in prison awaiting the departure of the China steamer, on which they will be returned to their native land. By the order of Sheriff Hale, no person is allowed to visit the prisoners. Almost every day several Chinamen call at the Sheriff's office and plead to secure permission to see either a "brother," a "cousin," or a "father." Ah Gim, a Chinese lawyer in San Francisco, has called almost every day and endeavored to see the prisoner, but has been refused. Last evening about 10 o'clock he called at the jail. "Good evening, Mr. Alden," said the cute briber. "Heap nice evening. You likee cigar? Alla same Melican man cigar."

The jailer accepted the cigar and awaited further developments.

"Mr. Alden, you heap be ready," continued Mr. Gim, "Pretty soon six Chinamen be arrested and be brought here. Alla same policeman make a lottery raid, catchee six Chinamen. Be here in jail in a few minutes."

Alden informed Mr. Gim that if a lottery raid had been made by the police the Chinamen would be brought to the City Prison and not to the County Jail.

"Me heap sabee," replied Gim and he went away, stating that he would go to the City Prison.

About an hour later Gim returned to the County Jail and said that the Chinamen had not yet been arrested. He then made a clean breast of his scheme to Jailer Alden. He stated that he had six Chinamen around the corner who wanted to go back to China. He would bring these six Chinamen to the jail and exchange them for six of the Chinamen held under the Exclusion Act. Gim informed Alden that no one would know the difference, as the Chinamen had been watched and followed from San Diego to this city and their photographs had not been taken. Mr. Alden looked out the door and sure enough the six Chinamen were at the corner awaiting orders. Gim informed Mr. Alden that he would fix him well for his trouble. At this point the conversation ended as Mr. Gim was ejected from the jail. Sheriff Hale has given orders that he not be allowed to enter the jail again as a visitor.

STEPHEN M. WHITE

a view to the coming Senatorial election—but the few we have cannot be forced to accept the dictation of this convention to divest themselves of their constitutional right to use their unaided judgment in the selection of a United States Senator. And now I will go farther, and declare that this convention has no power to strip the nominees of the District Conventions of their prerogatives. If it had, I would still oppose the resolution on the ground that it is an unheard of thing to close the nominations in such a summary way. If Mr. Workman and Mr. Gaffey can introduce a resolution ordering the election of Mr. White to the Senate, then I have the same power to demand the passage of a resolution calling for the election of that worthy Democrat, Judge William T. Wallace, as good a Democrat as Mr White and, as I choose to believe, an abler man. My friend Marve of San Francisco would have the right to propose the man of his choice, Samuel Wilson, and every other delegate could name his candidate. Votes would have to be taken on the names."

Clay W. Taylor of Shasta followed in support of the resolution. He said:

"Though a man from the far north, I approve of the plan to make Mr. White the candidate of the Democratic party for United States Senator. I have served in the Legislature long enough to feel ashamed of the way in which Senators have been elected. Why, Mr. Chairman, under the present practice, a man of small means, no matter what his ability, is as effectually barred from the Senate of the United States, if he lives in California, as though he were a Chinaman or a Digger Indian. Look at the present practice. The candidate has to set up a bureau as soon as the primaries are called. He has to make a fight to control the district elections, and that means money. When his candidates are nominated, he has to take care of their election and that means money. There are thirty close districts in this State, and $1 000 put into each of them is a low figure. That is $30,000 to begin with. Why, Mr. Chairman, I have heard that $25,000 was spent to elect one State Senator in Alameda county, and another State Senator told me his election had cost him for legitimate expenses $6,000. When the candidate has elected his Assemblymen and Senators, he has got to win the independent men in the safe districts who did not need his assistance. This means headquarters at Sacramento, wine, cigars, carriages, and an expense that will make his outlay $50,000, if he does not buy a vote. Then all the bosses have to be engaged. There is the San Francisco boss, the Alameda boss, the Sacramento boss, the San Jose boss, and every leader of a court-house clique from Shasta to San Diego, and we all know there are such men. Of course, many men who go to the Legislature cannot be influenced, but such men differ about the choice and their power is divided. I tell you, gentlemen, we have got to put forward a candidate for the Senate in this way, or we cannot succeed. The Republicans have virtually done the same thing. Their convention endorsed their present Senator, Leland Stanford, and everyone knows that a vote for the Republican Legislative ticket is a vote for Stanford. Let us put up our best man; let us oppose White to Stanford and fight out the issue like men. If we do not resolve in favor of Mr. White, he cannot go into the campaign, and the party will lose his services. He knows the old methods too well to attempt an election unless the party makes him a candidate. He has no money to put into district fights and no disposition to spend it in that manner, if he had. He has no lobby to set up and will hire no bosses. He offers to make his own fight before the people, he will stump the State for the ticket and abide by the result." (Applause.)

Brinkhoff of Sonoma said that with him the trouble was he did not prefer White to all the other Democrats for the place, and so could not vote for the resolution. If candidates for the United States Senate were to be nominated in the convention, he agreed with Moffitt, that every one should have a chance.

"Take the power from us and use it yourself," said McCarthy of San Francisco. "Why, you ain't had a chance to know who is a candidate. You wasn't elected by your district to do anything but help make a State ticket."

"Well, if such an assumption of power would cure the evils of which Mr. Taylor has spoken, I would be willing to take the chance," retorted Brinkhoff.

The debate then grew very acrimonious. A Santa Clara delegate remarked that the south thought there was no brains anywhere else, and a San Francisco delegate, on being referred to as a hobo, replied that he had never gone into a scheme to rob suckers on land booms. Someone wanted to name Dr. O'Donnell, and another delegate suggested Dennis Kearney.

At last, after two hours' wrangling, the resolution was put and defeated by a vote of 439 to 200, San Francisco casting 140 of its 141 votes in the negative.

Looking forward on this question is difficult. White was made unpopular by his many declinings of the Governorship, and every district delegate and expectant member of the Legislature wants a free field on this question, either for what there is in it or because he has a candidate. A man who gives his free vote in the Legislature to a candidate for the United States Senate has a claim on his gratitude for life, but to exercise his vote perfunctorily under the order of a convention carries no demand for any return. It is not human nature to relinquish gifts or power, and until the State Constitution is changed there will be no change in the manner of electing Senators, or I am badly mistaken in my estimate of politicians and their ways.

James V. Coleman is in the south and his friends say his strength is growing.

Pond and Morrow some think will be the ticket—while others swear by Coleman and Coombs.

Use Without Soap

The World was ready for Pearline—received it with smiling face—outstretched arms and in a few years, has made the very name Pearline to mean perfect cleanliness, with ease, comfort and safety.

It's to your interest and ours to have you try it (we share the benefits with you). On coarse articles or fine; on anything washable. Delightful in the bath. Millions use Pearline because it helps them—not us. It helps us most to make an article that helps woman.

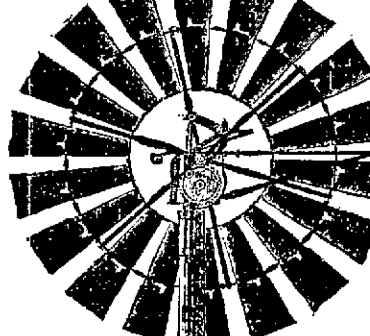

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—they are not, and besides are dangerous. 155 Pearline is manufactured only by JAMES PYLE, New York.

FORTY-FIVE HOUSES

The Building Report for a Fortnight in June.

REGULAR GROWTH OF THE CITY.

Permanent Improvements of the Value of Half a Million Dollars Since April 1st.

The real estate market is quiet, as is always the case at this time of the year. It is the season of the general summer outing, and much of the ordinary business activity of the city not only in real estate, but in most other branches, is transferred to the tented field, where the health-giving pleasures of camp life are expected to renew the system and make ready for a vigorous late summer and fall campaign in the most solid of all staples, real estate.

The auction sale of lots in the vicinity of Twenty-third avenue, on the 7th inst., will lead to the early erection of a number of first class cottages. Sales of lots for improvement continue in moderate volume.

Building Improvements.

The full average complement of mechanics are employed throughout the city. The subjoined list shows a steady and continuous growth, which has at no period been surpassed during the corresponding period. Forty-five new buildings are noticed, costing more than one hundred and ten thousand dollars.

THE CENTRAL DISTRICT.

Many plans of new buildings, mostly residences, in this section are in the hands of architects and builders, and will soon be signed for active work. Meanwhile, an army of carpenters, plasterers and painters is engaged in finishing numerous structures.

Toobig & Moore, contractors and builders, have under construction a large two-story residence of twelve rooms on Grand avenue, between Webster street and Lake Merritt. The design is artistic, and the architecture, which is composite, is pleasing in effect. It will be supplied with all modern improvements, including electrical apparatus. The cost will be $8000.

W. T. Veitch & Bro. have begun the construction of an eight-room residence of handsome design on Myrtle street, between Twenty-second and Twenty-third streets, for James Cahill, to cost $4500.

Owen Lafferty has completed a neat dwelling on First street, between Franklin and Webster streets. Mr. King had the contract and the cost will be $1600.

EAST OAKLAND.

At the present time building is going on more rapidly in this extensive section of the city than in any other. The enterprise shown in placing on the market, on the most liberal terms, several outlying tracts has resulted in the construction of large numbers of modest cottages, mostly homes built by lot-owners or built on the installment plan on easy payments. Besides these, several residences, more pretentious and ornate, are being built, mostly on sites commanding extended views of city and country.

Twenty-seven dwellings and three business houses are detailed in the present report, comprising five stores, two offices, and thirty-three single houses or flats for residences.

Building will continue active, especially in the extreme eastern section, throughout the season, as contractors report plenty of work in view, much of which will be of a superior class.

W. T. Veitch & Bro. are rebuilding the old mansion at the corner of Seventh avenue and East Nineteenth street, for E. J. Pringle. The architecture is old colonial, and the exterior will present the chief characteristics of the best houses of ante-revolutionary days. The interior will be specious, comprising fifteen rooms, with all modern accessories. The cost will be about $9000.

Edward Dolan has completed two elegantly finished cottages of six rooms, with laundry, basement, and attic, on the west side of Fifth avenue, between Eighth and Ninth streets. James C. Bassett had the contract. The cost will be $2500 each—$5000.

A residence, noticeable for its pleasing architectural effects and fine finish, is approaching completion, on the east side of Sixth avenue, between Ninth and Tenth streets, for A. S. Maxwell. It is of two stories, eight rooms and basement, with all modern improvements. It is Eastlake in design, and relieved by gables and verandas projected in excellent taste. William McDonald is the contractor. The cost will be $6000.

Mr. Lambert is building a large two-story residence of ten rooms, on Seventh avenue, between East Fourteenth and East Fifteenth streets, to cost $3000. J. Hodge, contractor.

George Fick, contractor, is building for Charles Downing a two-story residence of eight rooms, on the corner of Tenth avenue and East Twenty-first street, with all modern improvements. The cost will be $4000.

C. F. Weldon, contractor, has in course of construction, for W. J. Field, two two-story houses of seven rooms each, on East Sixteenth, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second avenues. The finish is of Eastlake, and the cost will be $1500 each—$3000.

S. W. McKeen, contractor, has nearly completed, for his own occupancy, a handsome cottage of nine rooms, on the west side of Fourth avenue, between Eighth and Ninth streets, at a cost of $2000.

J. F. Marr has under construction by day labor a two-story building comprising one four room and one six-room flat, with all modern conveniences, on East Eleventh street between Seventh and Eighth avenues, to cost $4000.

R. J. Roberts, contractor, is building for Mrs. Vincent a two-story house comprising a flat of six rooms below and one of seven rooms above, on Park avenue between East Tenth and East Eleventh streets, to cost $2500.

J. Baughman, contractor, is building for J. Marsh a five-room cottage on East Twenty-first street between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth avenues, to cost $1750.

P. D. Mowell is building a two-story residence of eight rooms on East Twelfth street between Seventeenth and Eighteenth avenues, to cost $1500. G. M. Buck, contractor.

Mr. Bray is building an eight-room two story residence on Twenty-first avenue near East Twenty-second street, to cost $2000. W. S. Wilson is the contractor.

J. A. Eastman is building for his own occupancy as residence and office a one and a half story cottage on East Twenty-second street, between Twenty-second and Twenty-third avenues. This will rank among the handsomest and best-built houses in the vicinity. It will contain ten rooms and an ornamental porch and cost $3000.

A. Buck, contractor, is building for his own account a six-room cottage on East Twenty-second street between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth avenues, to cost $2000.

Mrs. G. Thompson is building a one and a half-story residence of six-rooms and high basement on East Tenth street, between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth avenues, A. Thompson has the contract and the cost will be $2500.

Louis Schubert is building a four-room dwelling on East Eleventh street, between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh avenues to cost about $1000. Dodge & Moody contractors.

G. M. Teeples has completed a finely finished seven room cottage on the northeast corner of Sixteenth street and Twenty-first avenue. It has basement, attic, bath, bay windows, and modern improvements. C. F. Weldon has the contract, and the cost is $2900. The same contractor is building for the same owner a four room dwelling on Twenty-first avenue, between East Sixteenth and East Seventeenth streets, to cost $900. Mr. Weldon has also finished for H. Hyne a plumber's shop on East Fourteenth street, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth avenues, costing $200, and a four room dwelling adjoining for Emanuel Victorine, cost ing $900.

Jacob Many is building a five room and basement cottage on East Sixteenth street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth avenues, to cost $1600. F. A. Brown contractor.

E. F. Scott, contractor, is building for Peter Saul a five room cottage on Sixteenth avenue, between East Fifteenth and East Sixteenth streets, to cost $1250.

J. A. Eastman, contractor, is building for J. Laing a five room and basement cottage on Kennedy street. to cost $1600.

Dr. William B. Lorrett is building, under charge of T. J. Bartlett foreman, a large and handsome eight room cottage, one and one-half story, on East Twenty-fourth street, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second avenues. The cost will be $2000.

J. C. Nelson, contractor, is building for Nelson Fife of San Francisco, a six room cottage on Fifteenth avenue, between East Seventeenth and East Eighteenth street, to cost $1400.

BUSINESS HOUSES.

A one-story block, 42x50 feet, to contain three stores, is under construction by Henry Hampel, on the southeast corner of East Fourteenth street and Sixteenth avenue. Charles Deike is the contractor and the cost will be about $2500.

The office building of J. C. Kimble's new lumber yard on East Fourteenth street and Seventeenth avenue is elegantly finished in native hardwoods, at a cost of about $1000.

J. Gillam is building a block 36x50 feet, frame, comprising two stores and dwelling of eight rooms above with square bay windows, on the east line of Thirteenth avenue, southeast corner of Twenty-third street, at a cost of $3000. J. C. Nelson has the contract.

WESTERN AND NORTHERN.

O. F. Hunt, contractor and builder, will commence work on a five-room cottage on the southeast corner of Wood and Fifteenth street, to cost $1300.

Baby O'Connell is separating and enlarging a double house on Fourteenth street, between Willow and Wood streets, at a cost of $500. O. F. Hunt is the contractor.

David Sieburg is building a two-story residence of seven rooms on the north side of Fourteenth street, between Campbell and Willow, to cost $2200. John Deutschler is the contractor.

J. H. Dingwell is building for John Colgett a fine modern cottage, with all modern improvements, on the north side of Eighteenth street, east from Union, to cost $2500.

O. F. Hunt, contractor, has under construction a five-room cottage on the corner of Wood and Fourteenth streets, for Louis Lamotti, at a cost of $1100.

Frederick Dingwell, contractor, is building for his own account a five-room cottage of handsome design on the north side of Eighteenth street, near Union street, at a cost of $2000.

Charles Bowen, contractor, is building for his own account a six room cottage on the north side of Twelfth street, between Cypress and Center, to cost $2200.

Antonio de Punte is finishing for himself a two story dwelling of six rooms on Henry street, between Second and Third streets, at a cost of $1000.

K. Mackenzie, contractor and owner, is building a five room cottage on Twelfth street, between Cypress and Center, with modern improvements, to cost $1500.

Professor Job Schuer is building and and has nearly complete, a cottage of elegant design, six rooms, attic, and basement, on the east side of Grove street, opposite Thirtieth, to cost $2500. J. S. White is the contractor.

C. G. Mayborn is building for his own account an eight-room, two-story residence on the south side of Forty-first street, between San Pablo avenue and Adeline streets to cost $2000.

A PUBLIC HALL.

Howard Shaw has built, and has in a forward state of completion, a two-story building on the corner of San Pablo avenue and Thirty-seventh street. The ground dimensions are 35 feet on the avenue, with a depth of 85 feet on Thirty-seventh street. The exterior design is striking, the medieval gothic architecture predominating. A large sectional window at the southwest angle will serve as an observatory from which a magnificent view of the bay and city of San Francisco is afforded. A tower 75 feet in height surmounts the structure. The lower floor will be fitted up in native woods, and the ceilings elegantly frescoed. The second floor is a spacious hall, full size of the building and with high ceiling.

Mr. Shaw was his own architect. The building will cost $6500.

NOTES.

The bricklayers' trade is extremely dull at present in Oakland, as most of the building going on is of residences and business structures outside the fire limits—almost all of wood—though most have brick foundations. Our resident bricklayers however find constant employment in San Francisco.

Mr. Lincoln, a property owner in Napa valley and Vallejo, will build a residence in Oakland.

Peter Saul will build two more modern cottages on Sixteenth avenue adjoining the one he has now under way.

Work is progressing on J. P. Rynders' $10,000 residence, on the northeast corner of Third avenue and East Twelfth street.

There is very little friction by reason of the eight-hour movement. By far the larger number of carpenters are working eight hours, receiving $3 10 per day, while the remainder work nine hours, receiving therefor $3 50, the former rate.

T. H. Downing has two houses on Milton street, near San Pablo avenue, completed. The new street is improving rapidly.

SUMMARY.

The number of new buildings described in the present semi-monthly report is forty-five, of which forty-one are residences and four business houses. Total cost, $110,300. Previously reported since April 1st, number of houses 107, cost $389,000. Total since April 1st, 152; aggregate cost, $499,300. Of these, 138 are dwellings and fourteen designed for miscellaneous business purposes.

At Centerville for the Summer.

The following are guests at the Gregory House, Centerville, Colonel C. J. Pullen, manager, for the summer: Mrs. Kemp, Miss Linda Kemp, Master Nesbit Kemp, Mrs. J. C. F. Gordon, Mrs. M. E. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Erwin, Margery Erwin, Miss Mabel Dorety, Master Fred Dorety, all of Oakland; Miss Angie Whitney, Miss Kate Whitney, Miss Fannie Whitney, Miss Estelle Whitney, Mrs. A. "Moses was pretty smart."

"You bet he was. He played Pharaoh for all he was worth and got away without losing a cent."

River-Dawn.

Up the dark-valleyed river, stroke by stroke,
We drove the water from the rustling blade;
And when the night was almost gone, we made
The Oxbow bend; and there the dawn awoke;
Full on the shrouded night-charged river broke
The sun, down the long mountain valley rolled,
A sudden swinging avalanche of gold,
Through mists that sprang and reeled aside like smoke.
And lo! before us toward the East upborne,
Packed with curled forest, bunched and topped with pine,
Brow beyond brow, drawn deep with shade and shine,
The mount; upon whose golden sunward side,
Still threaded with the melting mist, the morn
Sat like some glowing conqueror satisfied.

The Want Advertisements Printed in "The Tribune."

There is no one fact which so well attests a newspaper's approved worth and circulation as the extent of its want advertisements. People who use this style of advertisement know from experience which newspaper brings the best returns, and what is the result of their small investment. The popular newspaper, therefore, secures the great bulk of this style of advertisement. It is then, with some considerable pleasure that THE TRIBUNE sees its page of want advertisements grow day by day. In fact there has never been a time in the life of THE TRIBUNE when it did not have more want advertisements than all its contemporaries combined.

One Section of the Nationalists.

The Oakland Nationalist Club has elected the following officers for six months: Mrs. Josephine Steele, Secretary; C. M. Waage, Corresponding Secretary; O. Orndorff, Financial Secretary; Mrs. Mason, Treasurer. The presiding officer is selected each evening to preside for that meeting only. This was one of the questions over which there was a division and finally a split in the Nationalist ranks.
